THE MARION DAILY STAR.

VOL. XIII NO 249. MARION, OHIO, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1890. PRICE 3 CENTS.

The Central Strike.

Its Case Being Thoroughly Sifted.

MANY WITNESSES TESTIFY.

All the Evidence in, but a Decision Will Not be Rendered Until January 1. This is on Account of the Law Compelling the Board to Report Through the Legislature.

[illegible], Sept. 6.—At the state board of arbitration meeting Division Superintendent Bissell, of Albany, took the stand and said that all dismissals on the New York Central were at the order of the third vice president and he understood that Mr. Lefevre was suspended for lack of attention to duty. He did not know that anybody was dismissed for being a Knight of Labor.

[illegible] asked for details as to Lefevre's neglect of duty and witness said that Lefevre often was seen by him [illegible] neglecting his legitimate duty. Witness knew that the discharged man was a Knight of Labor, but did not pay any attention to his standing. He admitted that he thought Mr. Lefevre was active in the knights.

Mr. Lefevre, a discharged employe, said he had been in the employ of the company eighteen years. Mr Bissell discharged him, but gave no reason, telling him he knew what for. He supposed it was for being a knight. He had never been reprimanded, suspended or accused of drunkenness or incapacity.

Mr. Rowan Staley, another discharged employe, and a school commissioner, said he was notified by Agent R[illegible] that he was discharged. No reason was given. He had been employed on the road for fourteen years.

He had been reprimanded in January, 1889, for being the head of an organization and had been threatened with discharge, but was not discharged. When discharged he had gone to Mr. Bissell and had been informed that he was discharged for working against the interests of the company. Witness had never neglected his duty to the company and had never been accused of neglect. Mr. Pollock had called him to New York and told him that he was aware of his connection with the knights. No action was taken at that time.

Frank Wilbur, a discharged employe, had been with the company three years, had been a Knight of Labor for three years and was discharged without reason. Was reprimanded about a month before for being away from duty while sick. Was never accused of drunkenness, incapacity or neglect of duty. He was a member of a committee of the knights. Had waited on the officials to ask for reduction of hours of labor just prior to his discharge.

William Kale, discharged employe, had been a Knight of Labor for six months. He had worked for the road four years, and was discharged without reasons being given. He was never accused of any neglect of duty, but was a delegate to the district assembly.

[illegible] Fenwick, discharged employe, had been a Knight of Labor for five years; employed by the road for thirteen years. No reasons given for discharge. Had never been reprimanded for any cause.

[illegible] Dubois, discharged employe, had been eight years in the service of the road. He was a Knight of Labor. The reason for his discharge was given as lack of labor. Had never been reprimanded.

[illegible] Galligher and John Bohner, testified in the same strain.

After this further testimony from other witnesses, Mr. Purcell said he wished it understood that the law allowed the board to give an opinion or decision only when both parties consented to arbitrate. In this case the board would consider the testimony and would make certain recommendations for the amicable settlement of the difficulty. The board could make this announcement, however, but through the legislature, and so Jan. 1 will probably be the date when their views will become public.

Siberian Exile System.

San Francisco, Sept. 6.—Capt. John Thomas, of the barkentine Catharine Sudden, which arrived at Port Townsend from Siberia, has sent to this city a description of the Siberian exile system as witnessed by himself. He states that a large party of exiles of all ages, heavily manacled, were being taken to Lag[illegible] Island. A few old men whose strength gave out, fell from exhaustion. The brutal driver acting under orders from his superior, shot the unfortunate men, and removed their chains. No mercy or discrimination was shown. Wives saw their husbands killed and mothers saw their daughters outraged and insulted. The exiles were driven like cattle, a heavy whip being used [illegible] them. The prison cells are filthy and the treatment barbarous.

Forestry Congress.

Q[illegible], Sept. 6.—The American forestry [illegible] yesterday and [illegible] went [illegible] excursion to [illegible] falls. Before adjourning [illegible] adopted [illegible] recommending the [illegible] of [illegible] study forestry and also [illegible] rules regulating the [illegible] public timber lands [illegible] the [illegible] of forests. [illegible] were also made in regard to the preservation of forests again [illegible].

The Fire Subdued.

[illegible], Sept. 6.—The fires which broke out almost simultaneously in four different parts of the town yesterday, and which destroyed 12,000 houses and most of the public buildings, have been extinguished.

THE PRESIDENT'S OUTING.

Noted People Arrive at Cresson Springs, Pennsylvania.

Cresson Springs, Pa., Sept. 6.—President Harrison, accompanied by Mrs. Harrison and maid, and Private Secretary Halford arrived here at 7 p. m. The party traveled as regular passengers on the famous Chicago limited express over the Pennsylvania railroad. The trip was without incident until Altoona was reached, where the distinguished travelers were met by Mrs. McKee, the president's daughter; his grandchild, Benjamin Harrison McKee, Mrs. Dimmick and Miss Jennette Halford.

The addition to the presidential party filled the drawing-room they had occupied from Harrisburg. During the wait at Harrisburg, where a change of cars was necessary, the president stood on the platform with his hat in hand. The president is not feeling in the best of health, but he believes that a few hours in the invigorating air of the mountains will tone up his system to its normal condition.

The party was heartily welcomed by the two [illegible] guests of the Mountain house, but beyond a dignified recognition and a few handshakes, there was no demonstration. Immediately upon leaving the train the presidential party, under the escort of Superintendent Dunham, was driven to the "Parke" cottage where the family has been located.

PREACHER CRUELLY BEATEN.

He is Dragged Behind a Horse and Flogged by White Caps.

Kansas City, Sept. 6.—White Caps, Tuesday night, so brutally beat and maltreated J. J. Smith, a preacher, who lives in a lonely piece of woods at Reno, Kan., that his life is despaired of. Five mounted men, dressed in white, with long, peaked caps on their heads, surrounded the preacher's house, and as he refused to open the door they burst it in.

A gunny-sack was thrown over his head, and he was dragged out and the sack made fast by a rope to the pommel of the saddle of one of the party, and he was dragged through the woods a distance of a mile, the horse going at a fast gallop. After amusing themselves in this fashion until they were tired, the White Caps stripped Smith naked, and fastened him to the ground by means of forked sticks, his arms and legs extended, and beat him mercilessly with willows.

He was left unconscious and bleeding, and when found, yesterday, was unable to speak or move. He was removed to a house and medical aid summoned, but it is doubtful whether he will survive. He is about 65 years of age, and the only objection which the White Caps had to him was that he had proposed to a widow of 45, who lives in the vicinity.

LADY SCARED TO DEATH

As a Result of a Drunken Desperado's Threats.

New Albany, Ind., Sept. 6.—Mrs. Charles Graham, aged 31 years, was frightened into convulsions that caused her death Thursday night at her home on the Corydon pike, a short distance west of this city, by the violent actions of a drunken neighbor, George Blust, who threatened her life, and ended by kicking in the door of his own residence, adjoining the one occupied by the murdered woman.

Medical aid was at once summoned, but the woman came out of the convulsions only a few minutes before death came, the last words she uttered being, "He has frightened me to death."

Blust killed an unoffending German nearly seven years ago on Main street, in this city, while drunk, and was sent to the state's prison for two years for the crime. He shouldered a gun shortly after the death of the woman and fled to the woods west of the city, where he is in hiding at present to escape the righteous vengeance of the neighbors of the murdered woman. Coroner Starr held an inquest but has not yet returned his finding.

Constitutional Convention.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 6.—The most important questions considered at the constitutional convention yesterday, were those of the penitentiary, and the report of the military committee. Regarding the former, it was agreed that the governor appoint five commissioners who shall, prior to the next session of the legislature, select a suitable place for a prison farm and report, with the estimated cost, etc., to the governor, who will lay the matter before the legislature. A minority and majority report was submitted by the committee on the bill of rights. The majority report, among other things, says: The right of this state to withdraw from the Union shall never be assumed; the legislature is allowed to enact laws limiting or preventing the ownership of the land by aliens. No ex parte [illegible] the property rights of married women shall be protected by law in property owned previous to marriage [illegible] dueling and [illegible] disqualifies from holding office [illegible]. The minority report [illegible] only one particular, that of ownership of lands by aliens, and provides that no distinction shall ever be made by law between citizens and aliens.

[illegible]

[illegible], Mich., Sept. [illegible] [illegible] were [illegible] in the [illegible] [illegible] bolts and [illegible] clear away the [illegible] them [illegible].

Reed in Maine.

[illegible], Me., Sept. 6.—Speaker Reed came from [illegible] yesterday [illegible] [illegible] and later addressed a [illegible] people on the [illegible] the Federal election bill. Mr. McKinley spoke on the tariff question.

Dun's Review of Trade.

A Business Barometer of the Past Week

MADE FROM SPECIAL REPORTS.

Several Failures Create a Disturbance in the Legitimate Transactions of Business—Purchases of Bonds Affect the Trade in Certain Ways—Failures of the Past Seven Days.

New York, Sept. 6.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade says: Another large failure, that of Sawyer, Wallace & Company, comes at a time when the effects of the Potter-Lovel failure at Boston prove more disturbing than was expected. It is not believed that the joint effects of two failures will be much felt in legitimate trades but the speculative markets are affected. Other conditions are all more encouraging.

The treasury has announced a second purchase of $20,000,000 of four-and-a-half per cent. bonds, and has disbursed during the week at New York $7,900,000 more than it has taken in, and while the Bank of France has lost nearly $2,000,000 gold, the other continental and London money markets are undisturbed. Foreign exchange here has risen from 485 to 485 3-4, but the money market is fairly supplied on call at 4 per cent., and there is no unusual pressure in the commercial market.

The prospect of speedy action on the tariff bill in the senate and considerably better sales by clothing dealers, have made wool manufacturers more hopeful and purchases of wool are larger, at Boston reaching 3,100,000 pounds. The dry goods trade is decidedly larger than last year with a better movement of heavy weight orders and full orders continuing for low grade goods. In cotton the demand is full and prices well sustained. The iron manufacture is also more promising, but pig iron is low by the heavy supply, copper is strong at seventeen cents, tin rising at twenty-two cents, and lead strong at $4.50. The anthracite coal market is weaker.

The accounts of trade from all parts of the country are encouraging this week; at Boston the money market is pretty stiff; at Philadelphia the liquor trade is active, chemicals in fair demand and drugs and tobacco quiet. Chicago reports smaller receipt of grain than last year except of barley, a decrease of of half undressed beef, because of stock yards strike. A large decrease in butter, but an increase of 33 percent. in cured meats, 200 percent. in lard. A heavy increase in cheese and wool, while merchandise, and especially dry goods sales, much exceeds last year.

St. Louis notes good trade in nearly all lines; Cincinnati finds business favorable; trade is fairly good at Cleveland, encouraging at Detroit, better than was anticipated at Milwaukee, unchanged at St. Paul, and fair at Kansas City. From Jacksonville there comes brighter reports, and at Savannah business is brisk, receipts of cotton for the week being 21,300 bales.

The speculative markets are lower. It is the prevailing belief that the second order by the treasury to purchase bonds ensures a fairly easy money market for the fall. The volume of money in circulation increased $4,300,000 in August, and is $4,500,000 greater than a year ago.

The business failures occurring throughout the country during the past seven days number for the United States 167, for Canada 36; total 203, as compared with a total of 180 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 201, representing 174 failures in the United States and 27 in Canada.

THREE HUNDRED LIVES IMPERILLED.

Fire Near the Mouth of a Mine Cuts Off the Air Supply.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 6.—The lives of 300 men and boys working in the Cayuga mine were in deadly peril yesterday afternoon through the burning of the engine house, and for a time an excitement reaching pandemonium existed about the mouth of the mine, where a great crowd of men, women and children gathered.

The fire stopped the fans, shutting off all the air currents, and suffocation of the men seemed probable. Experienced miners, however, noting the stoppage of the air, at once realized something was wrong at the mouth of the shaft and they fled to the Breston mine, out of which they all escaped unharmed.

Editor Arrested for Arson.

Minneapolis, Sept. 6.—A Sioux City, Ia., special to The Tribune says: George Williams, of Ida Grove, one of the best known county editors in western Iowa, was arrested here last night on an indictment for arson. He owns the opera house at Ida Grove, and last spring a rival house owned by political and personal enemies was burned. There has been a bitter political war in that county, in which Williams led one side, and this was the [illegible] of the arrest.

Freight Wreck.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 6.—The southbound freight train of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas road was ditched at [illegible] I. T., yesterday afternoon and Engineer Deal and Fireman [illegible] killed. The engineer was [illegible] under the debris of several cars. After the wreck the train took fire [illegible]. The dead engineer resided in this city and leaves a large family.

Fire in [illegible], Wisconsin.

A[illegible], Wis., [illegible] yesterday [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] warehouse [illegible]. The cause of the fire is unknown.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

A Very Important Land Decision—Other National News.

Washington, Sept. 6.—Acting Secretary Chandler has rendered a decision in the case of Arthur L. Church against the Southern Pacific railroad company. The case came before the interior department on Church's appeal from the decision of the commissioner of the general land office, rejecting his application to make an entry of a tract of land in the Los Angeles, Cal., land district. The local officers rejected the application because the land applied for lies within the primary limits of the branch line of the company under the act of March 3, 1871.

The appeal is based upon the alleged ground that the land was excepted from the grant by reason of its having been included within the claimed limits of the private Mexican grants, San Jacinto Neava and Viejo, at the time the railroad grant became effective. The acting secretary, however, finds that upon final division of the Mexican grants, subsequently made, this tract was excluded therefrom. The case, he says, is similar in all material respects to the case of Samuel R. Childs against this company, which was adhered to on motion to review. The commissioner's decision sustaining the local officers is therefore affirmed.

Decisions were also made in each of the following Los Angeles cases against the Southern Pacific company, the same questions being involved as those in the Church case: Philip A. Rice, John M. Piertle, Fannie E. Beale, Newton Heffman, Arthur L. Church, second case; Joseph H. Call and Nellie C. Williams.

Judge Chandler has also affirmed the commissioners' action in refusing the action of Upton D. Switzer to purchase a tract of land in the Visalia, Cal., local district on the ground that the township in which the tract is situated had been suspended from entry by the order of Dec. 24, 1885.

House and Senate Proceedings.

Washington, Sept. 6.—In the senate yesterday consideration of the tariff bill under the five minute rule was continued. The free list was considered and Mr. Davis' amendment to make binding twine free was agreed to—38 to 18. Mica was restored to the dutiable list. The consideration of the free list was concluded before adjournment.

In the house the Clayton-Breckinridge election case was taken up and Mr. Breckinridge made a speech in his own behalf. Mr. Daniel, of Pennsylvania, closed the debate for the committee, and after a motion to recommit had been defeated and the minority report rejected, the committee report unseating Breckinridge, was adopted, 105 to 62. The evening session of the house was devoted to consideration of private pension bills.

A Chance for Tug Builders.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The navy department has issued advertisements for the construction of steel tugs. Bids for these were opened some time ago but the figures were larger than the appropriation. The department has materially modified the requirements under this call. The mercantile tests for steel are substituted for those of the steel board. Certain parts of the outfit and furniture to be furnished by the contractor are eliminated. The time in which the tugs are to be completed is extended from six months to one year and the payments are to be made in six equal installments instead of in one sum. The bids will be opened Oct. 6. Each tug is to cost less than $35,000.

Small Silver Coin.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The director of the mint has received a communication from the United States minister to the Netherlands to the effect that the Dutch government has enacted a law providing for an additional supply of small silver coins for the use of the Dutch West Indies, to the amount of 5,080,000 guilders. The guilder is worth about forty cents.

Renovating the White House.

Washington, Sept. 6.—During the absence of the president and his family from the White House the historic old mansion will be thoroughly renovated, elaborate plans for its beautification and adornment having been prepared by Col. Ernst, superintendent of public buildings. The amount that will be expended is about $15,000. Work will begin at once.

Labor Legislation.

Washington, Sept. 5.—The senate committee on education and labor has ordered favorable reports on the eight-hour bill and other bills which passed the house recently. The reports were not unanimous.

Bond Purchases.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The treasury department yesterday purchased $271,[illegible] four-and-a-half per cent. bonds under the terms of the circular of August [illegible].

[illegible] Not Accepted.

[illegible], Sept. [illegible]—It has been [illegible] [illegible] of the season [illegible] the present season.

Gun of the Future.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. [illegible]—[illegible] steel [illegible].

[illegible]

La [illegible] expected [illegible] [illegible] were instantly killed [illegible] others were injured.

Buckeye State News.

Items of Interest from Various Places.

FAILURE OF A CONVENTION.

After Seven Hundred and Fifteen Ballots the Convention Adjourns Sine Die Without Nominating a Candidate. Other Happenings Throughout the State.

Piqua, O., Sept. 5.—The remarkable Democratic congressional convention of the Fourth district is over, and it is far from satisfactory because no nomination was made. Friday's session was tedious. The weary task of calling 224 men, one by one to the platform recommenced, and after the usual two hours had elapsed the result was footed up as follows: Ballot 715—Anderson, 84; Marshall 79; Marsh, 41; Gantz, 16; Chance, 0.

This result was exasperating, showing that no changes of any importance had been made and that the dead-lock was as firm as ever. The Marsh men had in their power to nominate either of the two leaders, but they held firmly to their own man. A motion to adjourn sine die was made and voted down. Another ballot was ordered and amid the general confusion the 716th ballot was the last effort. It was Anderson 84, Marshall 71, Marsh 47, Gantz 12.

The Anderson men had been favoring final adjournment. A motion to that effect was made and carried this time by a big majority about 5 p. m. There was never any prospect of nomination, either in the three days' session at Greenville or the three days' session at Piqua.

Education Investigation.

Columbus, O., Sept. 6.—W. D. Guilbert, chief clerk in the auditor of state's office, has commenced the examination into the records of the Columbus board of education, with a view to ascertaining to what extent the funds had been erroneously drawn from the state by enumeration. Among the school youth of the blind and deaf and dumb institutions and penitentiary since the illegal enumeration covers a period of about twenty-four years, it will entail a large amount of work. Some years ago during the term of Capt. Oglevee as auditor of the state a similar case was developed in Steubenville, Jefferson county, and whatever amount was drawn from the state erroneously is still due.

Farmers' Alliance Ticket Nominated.

Hillsboro, O., Sept. 6.—The Alliance county convention yesterday was largely attended and a full ticket was nominated, and about equally divided between the two old parties. A long string of resolutions were adopted, one of them that average salary of county officials must be reduced to $1,000, exclusive of clerk hire. A resolution was adopted to start an alliance paper here as soon as practicable.

New Incorporations.

Columbus, O., Sept. 5.—The following papers were filed with the secretary of state yesterday: The Eastern Improvement company, Cincinnati, $100,000; Londonville Ma[illegible] company, $200; Belmont Brewing company, Martins' Ferry, $50,000; Massillon Social club; Mt. Adams and Eden Park Inclined Railway company, Cincinnati, increases capital stock from $1,300,000 to $1,[illegible].

A Minister Arrested.

Columbus, O., Sept. 6.—Rev. J. C. Jackson, a prominent minister of Columbus, has been arrested on a peace warrant sworn out by Henry Lauderman, who charges Jackson with striking Lauderman's little girl. Dr. Jackson claims he was provoked to slap the girl because Lauderman's children have been annoying and terrorizing his little girls.

Injunction Against a Railroad.

F[illegible], O., Sept. 6.—Judge Johnson has granted a temporary injunction restraining the Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western railroad from laying a track on the old fair ground because no right of way had been granted.

Looking For a Young Attorney.

Youngstown, O., Sept. 6.—Creditors are looking for George H[illegible], a young attorney who [illegible] an Uncle Tom show [illegible] his indebtedness [illegible]. He is [illegible].

Electric Storm.

[illegible], O., Sept. 6.—A fierce electrical storm [illegible] [illegible] were [illegible].

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

PROTECTION AGAINST STRIKES.

Rich Corporations Combine Which Employ Sixty Thousand Workers.

Pittsburg, Sept. 6.—The Chronicle-Telegraph publishes an article to the effect that a powerful alliance now exists among some of the richest corporations in the country, the object of which is protection against strikes. The institutions in the alliance employ about 60,000 workers, and therefore directly support about a quarter of a million of people.

Among the corporations which are members of the alliance are: The Westinghouse interests in this city and elsewhere; the Yale Lock company, Colts Arms company, and four or five other like extensive factories in New England and elsewhere. The compact agreed to is that in case a strike occurs to inforce unreasonable demands, whether the strike be against one or all of the associated factories, all work is to cease. The strikers are to be allowed to remain idle until they return to work voluntarily, and no factory is to employ any worker who may have left another factory on a strike. Neither is any associated factory to seek workers during a strike from any of the federated works.

Blood Money Found in an Old Mine.

Bentleysville, Pa., Sept. 6.—The money stolen at the time of the murder of the Crouch family was found Thursday secreted in an old coal mine, not far from the scene of the triple tragedy last May. The clew was obtained from the 8-year-old son of Anna Brundage, who, with the negro, West, are in jail on suspicion of having committed the robbery and murder.

Recently neighbors overheard Homer Harvey, the reputed father of the boy, threaten to cut his tongue out if he did not keep quiet. This aroused suspicion, and the boy was induced to give up the secret, which was in effect that he had heard West tell his mother that the money was hidden in the coal mines. The amount supposed to have been in the possession of the Crouches at the time of the murder was $[illegible]. The Washington county officials have taken charge of the money.

John and Betty Never Dreamed It.

Roxbury, Sept. 6.—Nearly 5,000 people were present at the unveiling of a monument at Roxbury, Delaware county, yesterday, to the memory of John and Betty Moore, the original settlers of the village, about 120 years ago. A reunion of the family descendents from all parts of the United States and Canada occurred. Hon. J. H. Moore, of Michigan, spoke of the life and times of John Moore. The monument is of Scotch granite and is the gift of Jay Gould, whose native town is Roxbury.

The Socialistic parliamentary party have appointed Dr. Lux, editor of The Magdeburg Volkstimme, and Dr. Wurme, editor of The Dresden Arbeiter Zeitung.

BASE BALL.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

At Pittsburg—Rain.
At Chicago—Chicago 12, Cincinnati 8.
At Brooklyn—Brooklyn 1, New York 9.

PLAYERS' LEAGUE.

At Boston—Boston 4, Philadelphia 5.
At Pittsburg—Rain.
At Buffalo—Buffalo 13, Cleveland 5.
At Brooklyn—Brooklyn 12, New York 4.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

At Syracuse—Syracuse 12, St. Louis 3.

The Weather.

Rain; warmer weather; southeasterly winds.

THE MARKETS.

Review of the Stock, Money and Cattle Markets for Sept. 5.

Wall Street.

Money loaned at 4@5 per cent. Exchange quiet; posted rates, 485@489; actual rates, 482@484½ for sixty days, and 486@488 for demand.

Governments steady; currency sixes, 114 bid; fours coupon, 125½ bid; fours and a halfs do, 103 bid.

STOCK QUOTATIONS.

The following were the 4 p. m. figures:

Atchison	42¼	Mich Central	106
C. B. & Q	99¼	N. Y. Central	106½
C. C. C. & St. L	69¼	Northwestern	109¾
Del & Hudson	162	Ohio & Miss	21
D. L. & W	143¼	Pacific Mail	44½
Erie	26	Rock Island	85
Lake Shore	108	St. Paul	70
L. & N	87½	West Union	83¾

Cincinnati.

Wheat—96@98c.

Corn—47@49c.

Wool—Unwashed fine merino, [illegible]; [illegible] medium [illegible]; fine merino X and XX [illegible]; medium clothing [illegible].

Cattle—Good to choice butchers $[illegible]; fair, $[illegible]; common, $[illegible].

Hogs—Selected butchers and heavy shipping $[illegible]; fair to good packing $[illegible]; common to rough, $[illegible]; light $[illegible].

Sheep—[illegible].

Lambs—[illegible].

Pittsburg.

Cattle—[illegible].

Hogs—[illegible].

Sheep—Best $[illegible]; [illegible].

Chicago.

Hogs—[illegible].

Cattle—[illegible].

New York.

Wheat—No. 2 red winter, $[illegible].

[illegible]

Toledo.

Wheat—[illegible].

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

W. J. McElroy, Macon, Ga.

FROM THE SOUTH.

Latest News From the Central American States.

La Libertad, Salvador, Sept. 6.—The city presented a holiday appearance yesterday, the buildings being profusely decorated with bunting and flags and the streets crowded with people eager to welcome home the victorious army. The 7,000 troops under the command of General-in-chief Ezeta, Generals Bolonas Lopez, Monidero, Delgado and others entered the city this morning amid the salvas of artillery, and the ringing of bells. They had come from the frontier via Sonsovata and Santo Teclas.

The evolutions of troops were witnessed by the president, Gen. Ezeta and his wife, Gens. Zepeda and Ruiz Pastor, and a number of prominent ladies and gentlemen from the balconies of the municipal palace.

The officers and soldiers will be thanked for their services during the campaign.

A collision occurred between passenger trains on the Sosonate railroad between Acajutla and Armenia yesterday. One fireman was killed.

ON THE DELAWARE AND HUDSON.

Collision Between a Passenger and Freight Three Men Killed.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Passenger train No. 25, on the Delaware and Hudson railroad, due here at 7:05 o'clock Friday, was run into by a freight train at Howard's between Port Henry and Westport at 6:30 Friday morning. The Adirondack was thirty minutes late, and the extra freight was sent out on the passenger train's time. It is very probable that the passenger train made up some of the lost time and did not give the extra freight time to reach Howard's siding. Passengers were transferred.

Suing for Damages.

Baltimore, Sept. 6.—Having awaited the decision of United States supervising inspector in the Louise-Virginia collision case, in which fifteen lives were lost in July last, the attorneys employed by relatives of deceased yesterday entered suits against the Bay line and the Tolchester Steamboat companies, the damages aggregating upwards of $250,000. Both companies are made parties defendant, and it will be for the court to hereafter determine which vessel was in fault. Other suits are expected to be filed in a few days.

Drowned His Baby Brother.

Milton, Ga., Sept. 6.—Thursday afternoon Luther Holmes, a boy 7 years of age, threw his 12-months-old baby brother into the well. The dead body of the infant was found there an hour later.

The Great Benefit.

Which people in run down state of health derive from Hood's sarsaparilla, conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparing fictitious strength, but Hood's sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way all the weakest parts, purifies the blood, and assists to healtey action those important organs, the kidneys and liver.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

A cream of tartar baking powder. Highest of all in leavening strength.—U. S. Government report August 17, 1889.

BORDER HEROES.

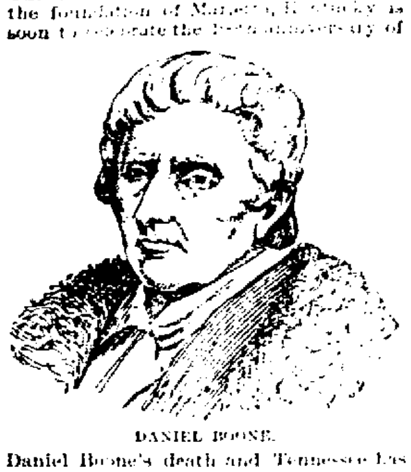
Fitting Honors to the Memory of Brave Men

DEEDS OF BOONE AND CROCKETT.

Kentucky and Tennessee Keep Green the Recollections of Their Distinguished Sons—Wild Scenes on the "Dark and Bloody Ground"—Kit Carson.

[Copyright by Ameri[illegible] Press.]

The central west is just [illegible] begin the celebration [illegible]. Of the states there first admitted [illegible] Union after the adoption [illegible] —Kentucky in 1792, Tennessee in 1796 and Ohio in 1802; the last has [illegible] celebrated the foundation of Marietta, Kentucky is soon to celebrate the [illegible] anniversary of



DANIEL BOONE.

Daniel Boone's death and Tennessee has with imposing ceremonies just laid the corner stone of a monument to Davy Crockett.

Daniel Boone was born in Pennsylvania Feb. 11, 1735, and died at Charette, Mo., Sept. 26, 1820, but David Crockett was born in the very heart of the wilderness where his great exploits were to be performed, and save for a short experience as a congressman his whole life was spent upon the frontier, and chiefly amid scenes so exciting that the coldest narration thereof thrills the blood.

Boone lived to the age of 85 and died in peace and honor, while Crockett fell by a murderous hand in what was to him the prime of life. Boone is perhaps the more celebrated, but the life of Crockett was far more romantic, and affords the more material for anecdote, as he was orator, politician and humorist, as well as hunter and fighter; while Boone was a man of action only, saying little and writing nothing.

Yet his fame has filled the world. Every western boy has listened to scores of anecdotes about him; how he lived so long in the wilderness alone with gun and dogs that he understood every gesture and tone of his dumb companions; how he walked backward as fast as most men walk forward, to mislead the Indians on his trail; how he cut the lower end of a grapevine loose and swung over a long space to "break his trail," and how he learned to use every art of woodcraft better than the Indians, and so "beat them at their own game." Lastly his exploits were celebrated in Europe, on the stage and in popular romance, and the poet Byron praised the pioneer hero in those peculiar stanzas beginning:

Of all men saving Sylla, the man slayer,
Who passes for in life and death most lucky,
Of the great names which in our faces stare
The general Boone, backwoodsman of Kentucky,
Was happiest among mortals anywhere,
For killing nothing but a bear or buck, he Enjoyed the lonely, vigorous, harmless days
Of his old age in wilds of deepest maze.
* * * The present case in point I
Cite is that Boone lived hunting up to ninety

Not quite correct as to fact, for Boone dropped a few Indians as well as "bear and buck." In 1769, with five companions, he sought the unexplored wilds of Kentucky and within a few months he and a companion named Stewart were captured by the Indians. They escaped, but were soon captured again and Stewart was killed. Boone again escaped and, refusing to leave the wilderness with the others, lived alone for months in a little cabin. Again and again the Indians reconnoitered the place, but they dreaded the sure rifle of the wary Boone, who had trained his dogs to be the best of sentinels.

He brought his family to the wilderness and, with other settlers, fought off the savages till 1778, when he was again captured. Such was the superstitious reverence of the Indians for this marvelously skillful pioneer that they took him all the way to Detroit to refer his case to the British commander. Discovering that a move against Boonesborough was on foot he escaped from the fort and made that wonderful journey, which would be incredible if not clearly proved. In five days he traversed the entire distance! Boone's [illegible] was at once strengthened, and the attack was repulsed. The Indians soon gave way on all sides, and Kentucky was rapidly peopled. Then came a cruel blow. The supreme court decided against "occupation titles." Boone's land proved to be in a strip bought by speculators, and he lost every foot of it.

In 1795 he took up his gun and started again for the wilderness, locating in the then Spanish territory of Missouri. The Spaniards made him commandant of the Femme Osage district and gave him a large tract of land. The region became part of the United States, and [illegible] more the old hero lost [illegible] of the laws. In [illegible], however, congress secured him in the ownership of [illegible] tract and he spent the [illegible] life with his [illegible] [illegible] and took him as his guest [illegible]

DAVY CROCKETT.

[illegible] and was saved [illegible] of his mother.

"We [illegible] escaped the [illegible] sides of [illegible] Ask my [illegible] He was [illegible] was hunting [illegible] and killed [illegible] his brother-in-law, O'Hara. He [illegible] to battle and never returned. Ask that representative from Kentucky where is his uncle, the gallant Hardin? He will answer that he was intrepid enough to carry a flag of truce to the savages, and they slew him. [illegible] mate and friend [illegible] I am reminded of a mother's [illegible] son whom she [illegible] when in the [illegible]"

David Crockett's father, like Andrew Jackson, was an Irishman of [illegible] fighting stock [illegible] native county in Tennessee. After [illegible] adventures of the most romantic nature he ran away from home at the age of 12 and remained three years. He became a noted hunter and Indian fighter. In the Creek war he served with great gallantry under Gen. Jackson, and beside the gallant Houston. He served several terms in the Tennessee legislature, and from 1827 to 1831—two terms in congress. He opposed Jackson and was defeated, but was elected again for the term of 1833-1835. He then went to Texas, and his strange, noble and adventurous career ended in the awful massacre at the Alamo.

On the 6th of March, 1836, after a bombardment of ten days, Santa Anna's force of at least 3,000 men stormed the Alamo, which contained about 150 Texans. These fired as long as they could load, then clubbed their muskets and fought on till all but six were killed. These had been cut off in a separate room and were promised their lives, but Santa Anna ordered them butchered. The Texan tradition is that as the order was given Crockett drew his bowie knife and dashed at the dictator, when several swords were thrust into him. All the slain were horribly mutilated, and the corpses were thrown piled and burned, such was the [illegible] honor in the monument [illegible] Lawrenceburg [illegible].

[illegible]

The services of Boone and Crockett in the central west were repeated on a far grander theatre in the Rocky mountains by Kit Carson, but his experience was with Indians [illegible] scenic [illegible] Kentucky and Tennessee [illegible] parallels [illegible] J. H. B[illegible].

Fatal Sport with Firearms.

Another [illegible]

One [illegible] his sister [illegible] W[illegible] [illegible] in their [illegible]

[illegible]

Tired of the Tone.

[illegible]

Grafted in a Cigar Box.

[illegible]

[illegible] CHURCH.

[illegible] Was Suppressed by the [illegible]

[illegible] What he [illegible] is best told [illegible]

"It [illegible] at first [illegible] laughing and [illegible] notes, and no [illegible] attention to the service. [illegible] and it wasn't long [illegible] in one corner [illegible] too good a [illegible] up to them very polite-like [illegible] to stop. You ought to [illegible] horrible look. I gave them a chance and then repeated my request and [illegible]

"Then they didn't stop then, and after [illegible] they had better leave the church. They took my advice. After I had asked a few to leave things went [illegible] they would [illegible] but a glance at my star or a request that they leave soon stopped all [illegible] business. They were mighty [illegible] and some pretty dudish young fellows. They were not of the first families evidently, but were a little too giddy.

DR. McLEAN AND HIS CHURCH.

"Flirting," continued Mr. Howlett, "is all right, but it is hardly proper in church. It ain't right to talk out and giggle and tell stories and write notes. You know that there is a regular crowd of young men who make the rounds of every church in Oakland on Sunday nights. They will drop in for a minute at one church to see if there are any girls whom they know there. If there ain't they go to the next, and so on until they find some one to take home. The young fellows have a bad habit of waiting in the anterooms and smoking cigarettes, or waiting on the steps until services are over and their girls come out. When the ushers would speak to them they would get touched at for their pains, but they didn't take very long to tumble to me."

His Unlucky Friday.

Elias A. Sullivan, nicknamed by friends "Yank" Sullivan, who bravely met death in the Baltimore and Ohio wreck at Oseola, was one of the best known engineers on the road. "Yank" firmly believed in all the peculiar superstitions to which railroaders as a class pin faith. Two months before his fatal wreck he took his engine, No. [illegible], the largest on the road, out of the repair shops. On his first trip a wreck occurred on the eastern division. This cemented his half hearted faith in an unlucky Friday. His engine needed repairs shortly afterward, and was ready for the road again on the Friday previous to the night of his death ride. This time "Yank" positively refused to go out, saying an accident was sure to follow. His fears were laughed to scorn by the men connected with the roundhouse, and Sullivan took the engine. That his words were prophetic proved too true, and it would be impossible now to get an engineer to take her [illegible] out of the Glenwood shops on Friday.

Shocking Scenes in a Cemetery.

At [illegible] there is a small cemetery in which [illegible] time [illegible] have been [illegible] the bodies of members of the [illegible] Recently the directors [illegible] to vacate the ground [illegible] it for [illegible] purposes. They

[illegible]

[illegible]

FAME'S FAVORITES

How Notoriety or Honor Comes to Woman.

LARGELY A MATTER OF CHANCE.

Recent Examples of Fair Females Upon Whom Shines the Light of Local or General Publicity—A Princess, a Countess and a Commoner.

Is there any station of life in which a woman cannot make a sensation?

Hardly.

She may be a savage or a [illegible] taking part of the harem or an [illegible] of female suffrage, a Joan of Arc or a shop girl, a leader of society or siren of the slums, but in some way she scales the heights or sounds the depths—reforms a race, redeems a nation, creates a style, ruins human lives, wrecks happy homes.

PRINCESS LILIUOKALANI.

She may be a meteor or a planet—a meteor flashing with baleful light along a fast and fiery pathway toward a doom of everlasting darkness, or a planet shining pure, serene, immaculate, unchallenged, a regnant queen amid the myriad majesty of stars.

Often the publicity that falls to her lot is not of her own seeking, but is a matter dependent on conditions or surroundings beyond the limits of her control. Take, for example, the case of the Princess Liliuokalani, who it is possible may reach the throne of the Sandwich Islands through the medium of a revolution at no distant day. She is the sister of King Kalakaua, and has the reputation of being the most beautiful and accomplished native woman of Hawaii. The reigning monarch's rule, so late advices say, has grown obnoxious, and the people clamor for a change of government, the most powerful wing of the opposition insisting that the princess shall ascend the throne, while the other and smaller faction desires a republic. If the revolt proves successful Liliuokalani will have risen to power and prominence through no active exertions of her own. She cannot be regarded as a schemer, but simply as one of fortune's footballs kicked high toward ambition's goal.

Her brother, the unlucky Kalakaua, is a sort of dusky Prince of Wales. He loves travel, jolly companions, a good time and freedom from ceremony. When he made his first visit to America and Europe, fifteen years ago, not even the Shah of Persia created a greater sensation. At every period of his progress curious crowds turned out to see the "King of the Cannibal Islands," and officials did their best to shower honors and attentions upon him. Queen Victoria, among others, greeted him as "royal cousin" and had him to dinner and a state ball. But perhaps among the incidents of that tour the monarch remembers most vividly his reception at Chicago.

COUNTESS SAROLTA VAY.

At that time [illegible] Harvey Colvin was mayor of the Garden City, and because of the style in which he ran the municipality had acquired the title of "King" Colvin. The two monarchs, Colvin and Kalakaua, met in the reception rooms of a hotel, while a crowd stood about to listen to the remarks from their royal lips. The formal introduction made, the former clasped the latter's hand and [illegible] indicating with a nod the assembled aldermen, "King, we just washed up and eat some supper, and we'll take a whirl with the boys."

It is of record that the worshipful mayor and common council of the city of Chicago did not meet in regular session the evening [illegible], and that the gentleman from Honolulu was almost forced by his suite to take the eastern bound train, his desire being to live and die where Colvin ruled. If Liliuokalani succeeds him the world will lose in him [illegible] crowning ones of the few monarchs who, to use a race track phrase, "have sporting blood in their veins."

Sarolta Vay is not a queen, or even a princess, but she is a Hungarian countess who became a remarkably sensational character at the behest of [illegible] on reaching the years of woman [illegible] because it pleased her so to do. Her father

[illegible]

[illegible] der protest, and declared that when she

[illegible]

People who [illegible] have heard of the Sandwich Islands [illegible] of Austria [illegible] Princess Liliuokalani, and [illegible] have become familiar with the [illegible] career of Sarolta Vay, [illegible] of the tenements, stores and saloons on Cherry Hill, in New York city, where [illegible] pert, self possessed, [illegible] young woman saunters down the street.

"See," they say to the stranger, "see her? Dat's de girl wot's goin' to marry Swipes de Newsboy. Ain't she a daisy, and ain't she lucky for collarin' Swipes?"

The [illegible] Cherry Hill for girl sweeps on, [illegible] it impossible. She is the admired of men, the envied of women in her circle of life. She is the toast of the hour, the sensation of the day, and not even the toughest tough of a tough district dare lift a finger or say a word in the way of insult.

Why?

Because she is to wed with Simon Bresser, better known as "Swipes," and Swipes has killed his man in the prize ring.

The girl's name is Sophie Furst, and she is the daughter of a Ludlow street plumber. While going home one evening she was assailed by a gang of hoodlums who insisted that she should "buy the beer." At this moment of her distress a stalwart stranger rushed up, felled the girl's persecutors in one, two, three fashion and escorted her home. Thus began the acquaintance of Swipes and Sophie, and thus through accident the latter has acquired fame and eminence great enough to satisfy the heart of any female Cherry Hiller. The wedding takes place in December.

The princess, the countess, the plumber's daughter! Each in her way has probably achieved the utmost fame that the limits of her life and surroundings will allow. They ought to be satisfied.

But are they? FRED C. DAYTON.

ONCE BELLE OF THE COUNTY.

Now in Jail Charged with Poisoning Her Husband.

MR. AND MRS. GRAY.

Rather more than twenty years ago Robert Gray, a stalwart young farmer, married Mary Jane Cravat, the belle of Madison county, Mo., and settled down on a homestead near Fredericktown. After a while the shadow of disagreement rose between them. Then Mrs. Gray ran off with another man. Her husband received her on her return several months later, but, naturally, the old love between the two was dead. Things went from bad to worse.

One day not long ago Mrs. Gray asked a neighbor who was going to town to buy her some arsenic, declaring that she intended to kill her husband. The man refused, and secured a promise that she would abandon her fiendish purpose. But it seems that she did not. At any rate she purchased poison personally, and within the ensuing week Robert Gray was a corpse, having expired in terrible agony. An examination of the stomach revealed the presence of large quantities of arsenic.

When arrested Mrs. Gray's sole remark was to the effect that she expected to be hanged. [illegible] her time in jail writing poetry [illegible]

THE HOME OF THE GRAYS.

[illegible]

An Ohio Miser's Fortune.

[illegible]

Photographing Criminals.

[illegible] that he can go.

LONDON'S LATEST SENSATION

It Is a Woman Who Exhibits a Lot of Reptiles.

London has [illegible] exhibition of reptiles [illegible] Mme Paula [illegible] attractive [illegible] Mme Paula toys with her slimy pets and allows them to coil about her person at will. She also enters a large tank and sports in the water with a huge trained alligator as her companion.

MME. PAULA IN THE TANK.

In the exhibitions three snakes, two alligators and two crocodiles are used. The audience one evening recently got an extra amount of fun for their money. A new alligator escaped from custody and crawling along the stage to the footlights attempted to make friends with the extremely unwilling members of the orchestra. The madame captured him just as he had opened his mouth to make a remark to the bass drum artist.

SAVED BY HIS SHOES.

Lightning Kills a Barefoot Boy and Spares His Comrade.

A storm passed over Kansas City early one evening recently for which the "oldest settler" failed to recollect a rival. A hot and sultry day preceded the tempest, which, when at its height, seemed to be made up in equal parts of rain and electricity. The thunder crashed, water fell in torrents and the lightning wrought havoc. Two lads, Archie Trimble and Benny Dimond, sought refuge from the storm beneath a carriage shed, over which waved the branches of a large tree. Simultaneously there came a flash, a roar and a sound of splintering wood. People who looked out from a near by house saw that the big tree had been split from top to bottom, and that the two boys were lying on the ground.

Examination showed that Archie Trimble was dead and that Benny Dimond's lower limbs were paralyzed. The former was barefooted and the latter wore shoes. According to the theory of the physician called at the time, the bolt first struck the tree and descended into the ground in sufficient volume to flash across 10 feet of intervening space and strike the shoeless boy who stood on the wet ground. Young Dimond's feet were also on the ground, but his shoes, acting as an insulator, protected him from the full force of the current and probably saved his life. So at least the doctor says. The dead boy was about 12 years of age and the only son of a widowed mother.

ARCHIE TRIMBLE.

Victim of a Fiendish Joke.

Three young farmers of Berne Township, Lancaster county, Pa., sallied out on a recent afternoon to rob a bees' nest of its honey. The nest was an enormous one, built alongside a fence post in the corner of a field. Before tackling it the three young men sat down near by in the shade to devise a plan of operations. One of the three, George Schmehl, who lives with farmer Samuel C. Dick, boasted the possession of the power of charming bees.

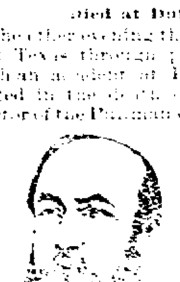
While the parley was going on Schmehl fell asleep, owing to the oppressive heat. Suddenly the thought struck his comrades, Jack Risser and Joe Dunkelberger, that it would be good sport to disturb the swarm at once and let the bees awake Schmehl, provided they could do so despite his charming power. They shook the fence post, thumped the nest vigorously and ran away.

In a moment a thousand angry bees came out, and plastered themselves with one accord all over the face, neck and arms of the sleeping man. He awoke crazed with pain, and ran madly here and there until he came to a creek down in the hollow into which he plunged headforemost for relief.

When he reached Farmer Dick's house his eyes were closed and his face terribly swollen, presenting [illegible] of a [illegible] face Farmer Dick had ever seen. For two days it was thought that Schmehl would die, but now the chances are that he will recover.

Died at Duty's Post.

The other evening the Missouri, Kansas and Texas through passenger train met with an accident at Paola, Kan., that resulted in the death of Z. M. Camp, conductor of the Pullman cars [illegible]. After [illegible]



Z. M. CAMP.

hardly [illegible]

The Price of a Female Slave.

[illegible]

The First Symptoms of Death.

Tired feeling, dull headache, pains in various parts of the body, sinking at the pit of the stomach, loss of appetite, feverishness, pimples or sores are all positive evidence of poisoned blood. No matter how it became poisoned it must be purified to avoid death. Dr. Acker's English Blood Elixir has never failed to remove scrofulous or syphilitic poisons. Sold under positive guarantee. Sold by H. C. Hoberman & Co. and W. B. Foye.

A Lady in Texas Writes.

My [illegible] suffering [illegible] baffled many physicians [illegible] tried every remedy [illegible] Bradfield's Female Regulator [illegible] relieved me. Write the Bradfield Reg. Co., Atlanta, Ga., for further particulars. Sold by H. C. Hoberman & Co.

Good Advice.

[illegible]

—Ex.

"It goes right to the spot," said an old gentleman who found great benefit in Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He was right. Derangements of the stomach, liver, and kidneys are more speedily remedied by this medicine than by any other. It reaches the trouble directly.

A Good Nurse

Should not hesitate to wait upon those ill with such diseases as smallpox, cholera or scarlet fever. There is little to be feared by persons waiting on the sick if they will use Darbys Prophylactic Fluid freely. In sick rooms it should be exposed on a plate or saucer, and the patient sponged off with the Fluid diluted. For safety, cleanliness and comfort in the sick room the fluid is indispensable.

Everthing Must Harmonize.

Mrs. Cumso—Why did you discharge all your white servants and employ negroes, Mrs. Fangle?

Mrs. Fangle—My husband's sister died last week and I'm in mourning now."—Munsey's Weekly.

Our Very Best People

Cofirm our statement when we say that Dr. Acker's English Remedy is in every way superior to any and all other preparations for Throat and Lungs. In Whooping Cough and Croup, it is magic and relieves at once. We offer you a sample bottle free. Remember, this Remedy is sold on a positive guarentee. Sold by H. C. Hoberman & Co. and W. B. Foye.

HOOD'S
COMPOUND EXTRACT
SARSAPARILLA
TRADE MARK

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Peculiar To Itself

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

CAUTION W. L. Douglas Shoes are warranted, and every pair has his name and price stamped on bottom

$5.00 $4.00 $3.50 $2.50 $2.25 $2.00 FOR GENTLEMEN
$3.00 $2.00 FOR LADIES
$2.00 & $1.75 FOR BOYS
$1.75 FOR MISSES.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE FOR GENTLEMEN.

Fine Calf and Laced Waterproof Grain. [illegible]

$5.00 Genuine Hand-sewed. [illegible]
$4.00 Hand-sewed Welt. [illegible]
$3.50 Goodyear Welt [illegible]
$3.50 Policeman's Shoe [illegible]

$3 & $2 SHOES FOR LADIES,

[illegible]

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

Sold by

J. E. RHOADS.

BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR
IS A SPECIFIC FOR PAINFUL PROFUSE SCANTY SUPPRESSED AND IRREGULAR MENSTRUATION OR MONTHLY SICKNESS
IF TAKEN DURING CHANGE OF LIFE GREAT DANGER & SUFFERING WILL BE AVOIDED
BOOK TO WOMAN MAILED FREE
BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO. ATLANTA GA.
SOLD BY
H. C. HOBERMAN & CO.

A GRAY GRIP CARRIER.

[illegible] COMMERCIAL TRAVEL[illegible] [illegible] TRADE.

[illegible] by [illegible] Cart [illegible], but Now [illegible] the Palace Cars. How [illegible] Earned His Notoriety [illegible] of "Drummers."

[illegible]

CHARLES P. LINDLEY.

[illegible] generations ago this army had [illegible]. It is true that peddlers, on [illegible], disposed of their wares [illegible], but what they sold [illegible] and not on orders for [illegible]. Indeed the commercial [illegible] is a product of [illegible] conditions and the exi[illegible] of the time. He is an outgrowth [illegible] transportation and rapid com[illegible] the railway and the tele[illegible] is the origin of the [illegible] as a class that their [illegible] lives, and still "goes out" in [illegible] firms, b'gosh, that [illegible].

[illegible] to whom, it is under[illegible] will be given soon by [illegible] "ancients of the road," is named [illegible] P. Lindley. He is 72 years of age, [illegible] present headquarters are at St. [illegible]. Mr. Lindley is a native of Saratoga [illegible] and began his lifelong ca[illegible] traveler at the age of [illegible] represented a factory at Meri[illegible] journeyed about with a [illegible]. His trunks were pack[illegible] be "put up" wherever [illegible] them—sometimes find[illegible] and again at a [illegible]. In those days banking ex[illegible] orders were yet to be [illegible] of financiers, and Mr. L[illegible] his current expenses by [illegible]. In 1837 he took a trip [illegible] for transportation on [illegible] steamer. Sometimes he was [illegible] on horseback and on other [illegible] he walked. It took him 23 days to [illegible] territory between Montgomery, Ala., and Columbus, Miss. Here is an [illegible] on his expense account while [illegible] southern trip:

JOSEPH MULHATTAN.

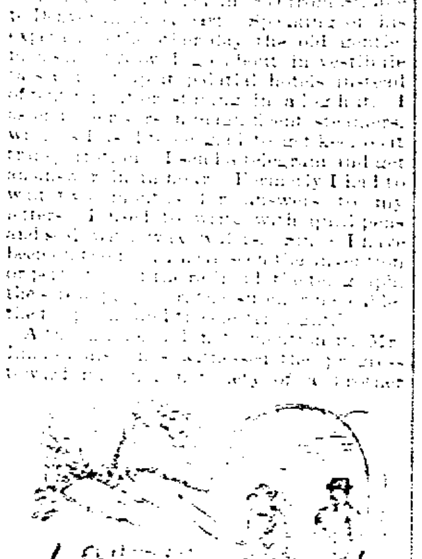
From W[illegible] N. [illegible] to Rome, Ga., 175 [illegible]	$20.00
From R[illegible] 150 miles by [illegible]	20.00
From [illegible] to Augusta, 84 miles [illegible]	5.00
From Au[illegible] to Charleston, S. C., 125 [illegible]	12.00
From [illegible] Wilmington, N. C., 173 [illegible]	11.00
From [illegible] [illegible]burg, Va., [illegible] miles [illegible]	7.50
From [illegible] Richmond, 20 miles by [illegible]	1.50
From [illegible] Washington, D. C. [illegible]	5.00
From [illegible] 100 miles by [illegible]	3.00
From [illegible] Philadelphia, 100 miles [illegible]	5.00
From [illegible] New York, 100 miles [illegible]	5.00
From [illegible] Albany, 150 miles by [illegible]	3.50
[illegible]	$[illegible]

Leaving M[illegible], Mr. Lindley entered the [illegible] W[illegible] firm and in [illegible]. Speaking of his experi[illegible] the other day, the old gentle[illegible] vestibule [illegible] palatial hotels instead [illegible] in a log hut. I [illegible] steamers, [illegible]. I send a telegram and get an answer in an hour. Formerly I had to wait [illegible] for answers to my letters. I used to write with quill pens and [illegible].

A[illegible] Mr. [illegible] witnessed the progress [illegible] of a [illegible]



ON THE ROAD FORTY YEARS AGO.

traveler [illegible] has outdone all his fel[illegible] and in whose perfor[illegible] hatched some of the [illegible] of the century. In the [illegible] of a Presbyterian [illegible] Ky., the name of [illegible] M[illegible] occupies a prominent [illegible] knows him less as a [illegible] a "drummer" than it [illegible] ter of colossal yarns. In 1875 he "discovered" a mammoth cave in Kentucky [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] only of a [illegible] New York [illegible] about the [illegible] by a meteor in Texas, which [illegible] village and [illegible] hot and steaming, a distance [illegible] in the earth, while a mass of [illegible] seventy feet high projected above the surface.

Many people think the life of the commercial traveler—and those of the [illegible] and newspaper men as well—is one continual round of pleasure. The "drummer" is supposed to be on a continuous lark, selling goods by day and dissipating by night, and this supposition is responsible for many jokes in the following vein:

Little Boy—How funny the town will look tomorrow.

Mother—Why, my son?

Little Boy—I heard papa tell some drummers to meet him at the store after dinner and they would paint the town red.

Naturally the commercial traveler has to be all things to all men—that is if the men are customers—but he cannot "see life" persistently and rise in his profession or even retain his place. Said an old timer recently: "There is no calling in which personal character tells so strongly on success as in ours. Not only does a reputation for wildness destroy the confidence of buyer and employer alike, but the physical exactions of the business absolutely preclude the dissipation of vitality by excesses of any kind. No young man can sit up all night and be in a condition to talk business in the morning to a dealer who is as smart as he is, and a good deal more experienced."

ON THE ROAD IN 1890.

Life on the road today is exciting and exacting because of the immense competition, and although the facilities for getting from place to place are far superior to what they were half a century ago, it is doubtful if, in his old age, "Uncle Charlie" Lindley has an easier time than in the days when he was the "sample" pioneer and had no rival to cut his prices or beat him out of his customers.

Diminutive but Pretty.

Two attractive little women of Paris, Mo., are Nellie and Dulcie Branham, aged respectively 22 and 20 years. Although they are but three feet in height and weigh only fifty pounds each, they are perfectly formed and might be termed beauties in miniature. They are well educated, both in literature and music, dress stylishly, are good conversationalists and are popular in local society. Miss Nellie has developed considerable talent as an elocutionist and amateur actress.

NELLIE AND DULCIE BRANHAM.

The Production of Quicksilver.

A report from the United States [illegible] department contains interesting informa[illegible] regarding the quicksilver mines and [illegible] reduction works of California, the only state in the Union where the industry is prosecuted with any success. During 188[illegible], 26,464 flasks of quicksilver were pr[illegible] at an average cost of $[illegible] per flask. The average sale price was $45, leaving a profit of $[illegible], or a total profit of $[illegible]. "No establishment," says the report, "can [illegible] profit comparable with the [illegible] tending the mining of cinnabar [illegible] facture into quicksilver, and finding for it a market in competition with rich and [illegible] establishments carried on by foreign governments."

A New Use for Electricity.

One of the latest uses to which electricity [illegible] is to be applied is the [illegible]. A person sits down in a chair, puts his feet on a block, puts a nickle in the slot, and the machine does the rest.

Many old soldiers who are on the pension lists of the United States live in foreign countries. Over [illegible] reside in Germany, 475 in Great Britain and [illegible].

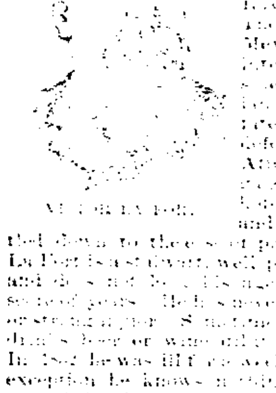
Statisticians have figured it out that the average cost of constructing a mile of railroad in the United States at the present time is $30,000.

HAS COOKED FOR KINGS.

An Octogenarian Frenchman with a Long Record as Chef.

[illegible] A native of [illegible] La Fort [illegible] to America.

[illegible] position [illegible] chef at Delmonico's famous New York restaurant, and during the war he was located at Richmond, Va., then he went to Mexico and superintended the [illegible] ill fated [illegible] to meet defeat and death. After that he engaged in various hotel enterprises, and now has settled down to the ease of private life. M. La Fort is a stout, well preserved man, and does not look his age by at least a score of years. He has never used tobacco or strong liquor. Sometimes, however, he drinks beer or wine diluted with water. In 1862 he was ill for a week. With this exception he knows nothing of sickness. One of the dinners he has served, and of which he loves to speak, was given to a party including four European monarchs.

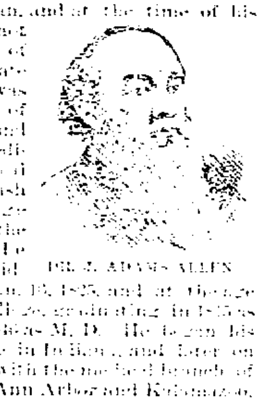


M. LA FORT.

AN ACTIVE LIFE ENDED.

The Successful Career of a Chicago Physician Recently Deceased.

Dr. Jonathan Adams Allen, who died at Chicago the other day, achieved high rank as a medical man, and at the time of his demise was not only possessed of a large private practice, but was also professor of the principles and practice of medicine and clinical medicine at Rush Medical college and dean of the institution. He was born in Middlebury, Vt., Jan. 16, 1825, and at the age of [illegible] college, graduating in 1845 as A. B., and in 1846 as M. D. He began his professional life in Indiana, and later on was connected with the medical branch of the colleges at Ann Arbor and Kalamazoo, Mich.



DR. J. ADAMS ALLEN.

After declining many offers from various points, Dr. Allen was induced by the late Professor Daniel Brainerd to accept the position at Rush Medical college which he held up to his death. In his profession Dr. Allen ranked almost from the start with the foremost, and he received many of its highest honors. The doctor was a permanent member of the American Medical association, and in January, 1870, was elected president of the State Medical society of Michigan. He was also a Freemason of high standing.

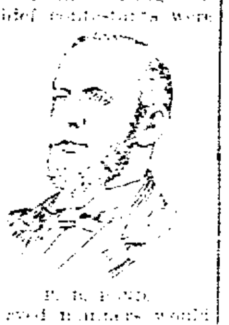
Among the mass of professional papers written by Dr. Allen none has perhaps attracted wider attention than that upon the "Mechanism of Nervous Action," for which the claim is made that it antedates works by Marshall Hall and other distinguished physiologists. Dr. Allen also gained large renown by his frequent connection with cases in the courts involving questions in medical jurisprudence.

The Theatre Libre in Paris.

One of the first plays produced by the Theatre Libre in Paris was "L'Evasion," by the late Count de Villiers de l'Isle Adam. It is the romantic story of a felon who, after killing his companion in chains, escapes from the hulks and gains admittance to a house where he is to murder the master and his wife. At sight of the newly married pair and the love they bear each other the convict is deterred by moral consciousness from his criminal purpose. Even when by so doing he might avoid falling into the hands of those sent to arrest him he prefers to be taken and sent to the galleys for the murder of the [illegible] servant rather than plunge his hand into two [illegible] and innocent hearts. The play, intensely thrilling, is as moral in tone as it is artistic in style and treatment, and the wonder remains that a production so high minded should have been found among rejected pieces in the waste basket of another manager.

California's Democratic Leader.

Hon. E. B. Pond, recently nominated for governor by the Democrats of California, secured the honor after an exciting contest, in which his chief contestants were W. D. English, of Alameda, and J. V. Coleman, of San Mateo. Mr. Pond has had many years' public experience as mayor and supervisor of San Francisco. His opponents, while admitting his fitness for leading the state ticket, declared that his reserved manners would alienate the masses, but the majority of the delegates nevertheless came to the [illegible] that he was the best man to [illegible] against Markham, the Republican nominee.



E. B. POND.

Mr. Pond is a native of New York state [illegible] San Francisco [illegible] years.

Voting in the House.

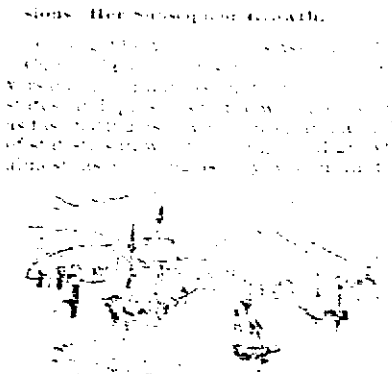
[illegible] there is no reason to suppose that it will change its decision now.

A CALIFORNIA JUBILEE.

THE [illegible] STATE CELEBRATES HER [illegible] OF [illegible]

Her Early History Is a Romance—Three Hundred Years of Spanish Rule Leave No Trace Save Names and a Few Missions—Her Subsequent Growth.

[illegible]

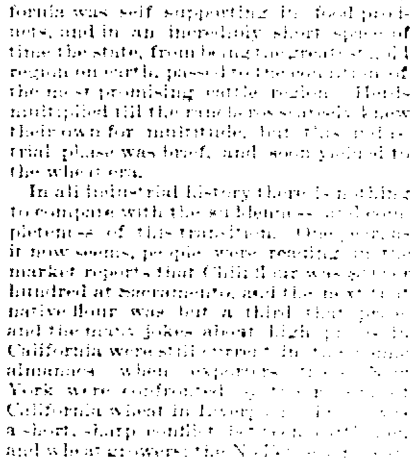


MISSION OF SAN JUAN [illegible].

"Admission Day." The state is more than exceptional among commonwealths. While its growth in population has not, on the whole, been so rapid as that of some other states, its history since 1848 presents a general development without parallel. After being for three centuries an unexplored and almost unmarked and waste province of Spain and Mexico, it suddenly became the land of golden promise to millions, and with a scarcely perceptible interval, without the slow process of a territorial childhood, it sprang at once to prominence among the states, like Minerva, full grown and armor clad from the brain of Jupiter.

The admission of the state, by act of congress signed Sept. 9, 1850, ended the longest session of congress held before the war, and with the other "compromise measures" adopted at the same date put an end to a long and furious sectional controversy, and gave final form to the territorial system of the United States—a form which continued, with changes of boundary only, till most of the territories became states, and still continues with three of them. The region which in 1842 contained a semi nomadic population of some 20,000 Hispano-Mexicans and perhaps 20,000 wild Indians, was in 1850 a state with nearly 100,000 white citizens; ten years later the number was 379,994, ten years after that 560,000, and at present the total falls but little, if any, below a million and a quarter.

Its material growth has been still more rapid. In 1842-45 it was noted as a remarkable fact if three American vessels arrived in a year to bring "Yankee notions" and a few manufactures from New York and Boston and carry away hides, and the chance arrival of a British vessel was an event of supreme importance. In the four years ending with 1847 about 5,000 Americans "crossed the plains" to the new country; in the latter year the country became the property of the United States, and before the close of 1852 about a quarter of a million of gold seekers had tried their fortunes there. At present the wealth of the state exceeds $2,000,000,000, and is increasing at an accelerated rate.



VILLAGE OF MONTEREY, 1837.

The gold product, rated at $10,000,000 in 1848 and $40,000,000 in 1849, reached $65,000,000 in 1853; then it was announced that the "best days of placer mining were past," and many predicted the decline of the state. Gold had converted Yerba Buena village into the most lively and interesting city in America. Gold had created Sacramento and many other flourishing places, and all other enterprises were subordinated to gold. It was soon discovered, however, that the wealth of the mines was but as cents to the dollars in the soil. The east was soon astonished to learn that California was self supporting in food products, and in an incredibly short space of time the state, from being the greatest gold region on earth, passed to the condition of the most promising cattle region. Herds multiplied till the ranchers scarcely knew their own for multitude, but this industrial phase was brief, and soon yielded to the wheat era.

In all industrial history there is nothing to compare with the suddenness and completeness of this transition. [illegible] it now seems, people were reading in the market reports that Chili flour was [illegible] hundred at Sacramento, and the next [illegible] native flour was but a third that price, and the trade jokes about high [illegible] in California were still current in the comic almanacs when exporters [illegible] New York were confronted [illegible] California wheat in Liverpool [illegible] a short, sharp conflict [illegible] and wheat growers; the N[illegible] ried the day, and within [illegible] astonished the world [illegible] prises in farming on a [illegible] hour after hour the traveler [illegible] a valley road, with its fenced [illegible] side the golden acres [illegible] bated as far as the sight [illegible] was the third stage. W[illegible] sheep are still important [illegible] branch of production [illegible] interest.

CAPTURE OF [illegible]

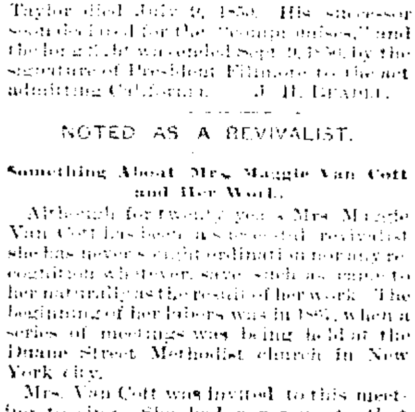
It might almost [illegible] California woke up one morning [illegible] famous on account of its fruits. The Spaniards had planted [illegible] left it to take care [illegible] fairly well cut from the [illegible] to the days of C[illegible] the last people in the [illegible] reference to the benefit [illegible]. In the early mining days peaches [illegible] cheap at "three for a dollar," [illegible] grapes at fifty cents a pound. The experi[illegible]

[illegible] Sir Francis Drake [illegible] noted.

San Jose, Francis[illegible] cattle [illegible] 1847. The R[illegible] perhaps 8,000 [illegible] Mexican war, and California [illegible] January, 1847. Gold was discovered in [illegible] and civil organization [illegible] Military Governor [illegible] Riley issued a proclamation for the [illegible] of delegates. They met at Monterey, Sept. 1, 1849, soon framed a state constitution, and when the Thirty-first congress met, the following December, William M. Gwin and John C. Fremont presented themselves as the first senators from California. Many yet living remember how the country was convulsed during the "long congress." President Taylor died July 9, 1850. His successor [illegible] for the "compromises," and the long fight was ended Sept. 9, 1850, by the signature of President Fillmore to the act admitting California.

J. H. BEADLE.



A FLOAT IN THE [illegible] PROCESSION, 1890.

NOTED AS A REVIVALIST.

Something About Mrs. Maggie Van Cott and Her Work.

Although for twenty years Mrs. Maggie Van Cott has been a successful revivalist she has never sought ordination or any recognition whatever, save such as came to her naturally as the result of her work. The beginning of her labors was in 1867, when a series of meetings was being held at the Duane Street Methodist church in New York city.

Mrs. Van Cott was invited to this meeting to sing. She had never, up to that time, heard a woman speak in public, save on the stage of a theatre, and believed that no woman of refinement would do so. However, impelled as she believes by the divine spirit, she spoke at this meeting in a most impassioned manner.

Mrs. Van Cott says of this beginning of her work: "It certainly was the inspiration of the holy spirit, for I had no gift of utterance, was full of timidity and fear, and had not been fitted in any way for such effort."

For nearly two years after this she conducted nightly meetings, while devoting her days to the requirements of the business which her husband's death had imposed upon her. Two years later the accident of insufficient light caused her to enter a pulpit for the first time. From that time on, more than twenty-two years ago, she has [illegible] meetings [illegible] over 65,000 [illegible] professed [illegible] of her preaching.

MRS. MAGGIE VAN COTT.

Mrs. V[illegible] New York [illegible] English [illegible]

[illegible]

Royal Travel in Cities.

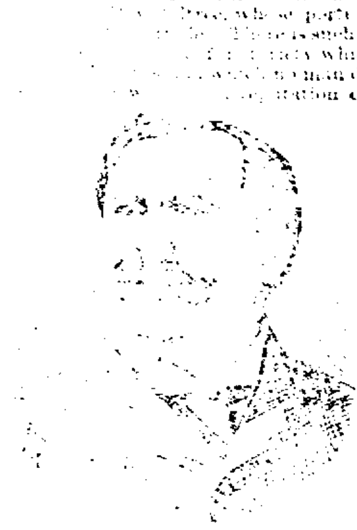
[illegible]

Another Boy Evangelist.

[illegible] The [illegible] belongs to Russia.

A [illegible] AMERICAN.

[illegible] Thomas P. Ochiltree [illegible] reputation on



COL. THOMAS P. OCHILTREE.

[illegible] by Thomas P. Ochiltree is somewhat [illegible] Texas, however, has [illegible] circumstances to the attention of the [illegible].

In the Forty-eighth congress he served as the first native representative of his state. His appearance on the floor of the house was always the cue for a hearty laugh. "Tom Ochiltree," dignified representatives used to say, "is better fun than the minstrels."

He always had some side splitting joke on himself to relate that cunningly bore on the argument he wished to advance, and he generally got what he wanted. In fact his representation of his constituents was satisfactory, the "Red Headed Ranger from Texas," as he dubbed himself, obtaining for his state almost all the appropriations he asked for. Ochiltree was neither Puritan nor Pharisee, but a delightful mixture of both.

Early [illegible] showed a more developed [illegible] forward, in a career dashing and adventurous in the extreme. He was born at Nacogdoches parish, Tex., in 1840, a stirring period that marked the close of Texas' career as an independent republic. His father, Judge William B. Ochiltree, a distinguished lawyer and a personal friend of Houston, and those men who carried the destiny of Texas in their hands, was desirous of bringing the boy up in a fashion to suit the [illegible] epoch he imagined he foresaw. To this end he placed him in charge of two Catholic priests, who have both since then won high honors in the church.

But young Tom, while displaying a bright intellect, also showed the liveliest signs of life. He abruptly broke off his studies in his fifteenth year, and volunteered as a private in the Texas rangers, commanded by Capt. John G. Walker, against the Apache and Comanche Indians in 1854 and [illegible]. At the close of the campaign he [illegible] to his books, but his was [illegible] and before he had [illegible] his majority he made himself [illegible], and in 1860 attended as [illegible] the conventions of Charleston and Baltimore. Then ensued the civil war, during which Ochiltree served with distinction on the staffs of Gen. Tom Green and Gen. Dick Taylor, of the Confederate army. He also received honorable mention while acting under special orders from Longstreet, and was rewarded by a colonelcy. After the cessation of hostilities Col. Ochiltree accepted the situation in good faith, and both by word and pen exhorted his compatriots to "stop crying and find solace in work."

During President Grant's first administration he appointed the Texan to be United States marshal of his state. But [illegible] saw him again in his editorial [illegible]. He conducted The Houston Daily Telegraph, and was untiring in his efforts to keep the resources of Texas before the world. The attention of the state government was [illegible] to him, with the result that he was sent to Europe to act as commissioner of immigration for Texas, and in that capacity he paid several visits to the continent as well as to England. Everywhere he became a man marked; his aggressive but agreeable manner, his odd but pleasing person, everything called attention to Tom Ochiltree, and he knew well how to keep it there, for he could tell funny stories in French, Spanish and English. As a matter of fact Col. Ochiltree was better known in Europe at this time than in the United States, outside of Texas.

It was his famous campaign in 1882, in which he ran on the Independent ticket, and defeated the so called most popular Democrat in Texas, Mr. Findlay, that brought him into prominence. At that era the congressional district which he was contesting embraced 37,000 square miles of territory, contained twenty-seven counties, and reached from Galveston on the Gulf to Eagle Pass on the Rio Grande. The great fight took place at Galveston, where Ochiltree and his adherents occupied the armory as headquarters, and his opponents the large Tremont House. Ochiltree kept everybody away from the speeches at the latter place by talking for hours at the armory [illegible] on himself—stories [illegible] every English [illegible].

Among [illegible] New York [illegible]

No Use for Sharks.

[illegible]

Sick Headache

IS a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine—sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

Ayer's Pills,

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists and Dealers in Medicine.

BIG 4

HARVEST EXCURSIONS!

—TO THE—

WEST AND NORTHWEST,

SOUTH,

Southwest and Southeast.

The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Ry.

—WILL SELL—

ROUND TRIP

EXCURSION - TICKETS!

To all prominent points in the West and Northwest, South, Southwest and Southeast

—AT—

HALF RATES

—ON—

Tuesday, September 9th,

Tuesday, September 23d,

Tuesday, October 14th,

All tickets good returning thirty days from date of sale. This is a glorious opportunity for Home Seekers to visit the territory named, and we would invite correspondence on the subject. For full information call on or address

E. A. DOMBAUGH,

Agt. C., C., C. and St. L. Ry., Marion, O.

D. B. MARTIN,

General Passenger Agent.

THE CHICAGO and ATLANTIC RAILWAY

With its Pullman Built Equipment, Substantially Constructed Roadway and Low Rates of Fare, Insures a Safe, Speedy and Economical Journey to All Points East and West. Write to your nearest railway agent for the Attractive Low Rates Via this line.

TIME TABLE, Taking Effect May 11, 1890.

EASTWARD.

	No. 2.	No. 8.	No. 12	No. 10
Lv. Chicago	8 37am	3 30pm	7 55pm	5 5[illegible]pm
" Archer Av.	8 45am	3 40pm	8 05pm	6 0[illegible]pm
" Englewood	9 0[illegible]am	3 55pm	8 20pm	6 20pm
" Hammond	9 35am	4 30pm	8 55pm	6 57pm
" Crown Pt.	10 [illegible]am	....	9 35pm	7 35pm
" Kouts	10 52am	....	....	8 27pm
" N. Judson	11 27am	....	10 10pm	9 10pm
" Rochester	12 27pm	6 37pm	11 27pm
" Akron	12 5[illegible]pm	....	11 56pm	No. 6
" Newton	1 1[illegible]pm	7 16pm	12 1[illegible]am
" Bolivar	1 29pm	....	....
" Huntington	2 10pm	7 55pm	12 58am	5 10am
" Kingsland	2 45pm	....	....	6 05am
" Decatur	3 10pm	8 45pm	1 44am	6 43am
" Enterprise	3 32pm	....	2 11am	7 25am
" Spencerville	4 32pm	....	2 36am	8 20am
" Lima	5 05pm	9 55pm	3 00am	9 05am
" Alger	5 30pm	....	....	9 40am
" Kenton	6 02pm	10 37pm	3 47am	10 25am
Ar. Marion	7 00pm	11 20pm	4 30am	11 3[illegible]am
" New York	....	11 00pm	7 30am
" Boston		9 45am	12 10pm

WESTWARD.

	No. 1	No. 3	No. 5	No. 7
Lv. Boston	....	8 00pm	8 30am	....
" New York	[illegible]	8 30pm	3 00pm	....
" Marion	[illegible]am	11 20pm	12 35pm	3 1[illegible]pm
" Kenton	10 26am	12 10am	1 15pm	4 41pm
" Alger	10 45am	....	....	5 [illegible]pm
" Lima	11 15am	1 06am	1 59pm	6 24pm
" Spencerville	11 40am	....	....	7 0[illegible]pm
" Enterprise	12 [illegible]pm	....	2 42pm	7 4[illegible]pm
" Decatur	12 45pm	2 26am	3 10pm	8 4[illegible]pm
" Kingsland	1 12pm	....	....	9 3[illegible]pm
" Huntington	2 [illegible]pm	3 25am	4 05pm	10 [illegible]pm
" Bolivar	2 [illegible]pm	....	....
" Newton	2 40pm	4 13am	4 37pm	No. 9
" Akron	3 05pm	4 27am	....
" Rochester	3 2[illegible]pm	4 45am	5 11pm
" N. Judson	4 25pm	....	....	5 50am
" Kouts	4 54pm	....	....	6 2[illegible]am
" Crown Point	5 43pm	....	....	7 15am
" Hammond	6 20pm	7 25am	7 35pm	8 00am
" Englewood	6 58pm	7 57am	8 05pm	8 34am
" Archer Ave.	7 15pm	8 17am	8 25pm	8 57am
Ar. Chicago	7 25pm	8 25am	8 35pm	9 10am

Nos. [illegible], 1[illegible], 12, 3, 9 and 5 daily. Nos. 2, 6, 1 and 7 daily except Sunday.

Where time is not shown trains do not stop. No. 12 stops at No. Judson, Akron and Enterprise on signal only; No. 10 at Kingsland and [illegible]; No. 2 at Akron; No. 7 at Alger.

F. C. DONALD, Gen'l Pass. Agt., Chicago

L. C. CANNON, Gen'l Agt. for Receiver.

DR. SANDEN'S

ELECTRIC BELT

WITH SUSPENSORY FOR WEAK MEN

FOR MEN ONLY.

PATENTED AND IMPROVED

DEBILITATED through INDISCRETIONS or EXCESSES [illegible] GUARANTEE to CURE by this New IMPROVED ELECTRIC BELT AND SUSPENSORY [illegible] REFUND [illegible] MONEY. [illegible] Cure of Generative Weakness, giving Freely, Mild, Soothing, Continuous Currents [illegible] WEAK [illegible] Health and VIGOROUS STRENGTH. Electric Current Felt Instantly, or we forfeit $5,000 in cash. [illegible] and Suspensory Complete $5, and up. Worst cases Permanently Cured in three months. Sealed pamphlet Free.

SANDEN ELECTRIC CO., 819 Broadway, New York

BIG G

[illegible] acknowledged [illegible] remedy for all the [illegible] discharges and [illegible] diseases of men. A [illegible] cure for the debilitating weakness peculiar to women.

[illegible] it and feel safe [illegible] recommending it to all sufferers.

A. J. STONER, M.D., DECATUR, ILL.

Sold by Druggists.

PRICE $1.00.

Trade Mark

The Marion Daily Star.

Published Every Evening Except Sunday
BY W. G. HARDING.

[illegible]

EIGHT PAGES.

SATURDAY, - - - SEPTEMBER

CORNER, WALKER & DAVIS,
THE LEADING
MERCHANT - TAILORS!
Are showing the largest and most complete line of Fall and Winter SUITINGS and OVERCOATINGS ever shown in Marion. Call and see and be convinced.

The Deutsche Presse thinks that it will be useless for the Republicans to attempt to elect a probate judge. Experience has taught us to believe that way, too, but the Presse will agree that there is no particular harm in attempting it.

Ed. Kennedy seems to have put his foot into a hole in his attack on Quay in the house, Thursday. Kennedy meant all right and he said much that was true, but circumstances do not always sanction these assaults with fireworks and the booming of cannon. Quay has his faults, but he is no worse than any of the other practical politicians of the day.

The people of Ohio are getting pretty well awakened to the iniquity of the parole system and the injustice worked by the pardon board. The recent parole of Lew Hook has caused people who have not heretofore thought of the matter to hold up their hands in horror. If the thing keeps on there will be no utter use of trying criminals. More than that indignant citizens will permit a visitation of Judge Lynch.

Our advertising columns have begun to show the fall increase of mercantile bids for trade. The worth of newspaper advertising is not a matter of speculation, but is an established fact. Of course the best results are secured from the best mediums. The best are those closely read and largely circulated. Those competent to judge do not dispute that the Daily and Weekly Star offer the best possible service in Marion and Marion county.

There are almost as many Republicans wanting the nomination of probate judge as there were candidates before the democratic convention. T. H. B. Beale, C. F. Garberson, C. C. Fisher and George E. Lawrence are named for the place, though all of these gentlemen are not engaged in a canvass for the nomination. There is some considerable hope of a successful contest for the office. The incompetency of the democratic nominee is urged and it is believed the thinking voters of the county can be successfully appealed to. The jurisdiction of the probate court makes its presiding judge an officer who should be thoroughly fitted for the position and the Republicans will at least deserve commendation for their work if they offer a candidate of superior qualifications. A better candidate deserves, too, to have the honest consideration of thinking voters. Whether a better candidate is nominated or not remains yet to be seen.

COL ALBERT H. BROWN

A Brief Reference to One of Marion County's Brave and Early Veterans.

Col. Albert H. Brown, of Morrow county, was stopping in Marion amongst his old friends for a number of days and called at the Star office during his stay. The Colonel is a Marion boy, of back in the forties, coming to Marion in 1844. He was able to give the Star much information that was interesting to us and most certainly would be of interest to the older citizens of our city. It will be remembered that the Colonel was one of the first to enter the army in 1846, to fight for his country in the Mexican War. He is, and has been for 25 years, the only surviving of the first squad that left Marion that year. It will also be remembered that the Colonel was the first man in Marion county at the breaking out of the Rebellion, telegraphing to Dr. Fisher, who was in Columbus, on the morning of April 12th, 1861, "Will the Governor accept my services to help put down the Rebellion?" In the [illegible] replied, "Yes, and [illegible] men [illegible]." That evening the Colonel [illegible] men and on the next [illegible] ed the organization of [illegible] afterward Company [illegible] the organization of the [illegible] iment the Colonel became [illegible] ant Colonel, and remained with [illegible] ing its entire term of service, and was the only field officer that [illegible] include in this article all we learned [illegible] interest from the Colonel [illegible] with the services of that regiment would take up more space than [illegible] permits at this time [illegible] urally presents itself. Why was [illegible] Colonel assigned a place [illegible] gram for last Tuesday evening [illegible] Camp Fire? The [illegible] command feel quite [illegible] matter, as well as some of [illegible] citizens of our city.

Of course the Colonel [illegible] a [illegible] that [illegible] service and was [illegible] close of the war [illegible] admiring [illegible] of "Old Dick" was [illegible] later on.

EUROPEAN CITIES.

[illegible]

Sailing on the Danube and the Picturesque Rhine. The Sights of Vienna and Munich and a Visit to Heidelberg, Cologne, Paris, London and Edinburg.

We left Constantinople Monday evening and traveled by rail through Bulgaria into Austria, making our first stop at Buda Pesth. We were until Wednesday noon in getting there. Although we had no sleeping cars, our ride was not a very tiresome one for the scenery everywhere was very attractive. The country, although thinly populated and a great deal of it still uncultivated, is admirable for farming and grazing as the soil is very fertile and well watered.

On reaching Buda-Pesth we were surprised to find so large and beautiful a city. It has a population of five hundred thousand. The Danube cuts this city, the capital of Hungaria, in two with a semicircular line, or in other words, half surrounding the Pesth portion of it. Boulevards run parallel with the river in the interior of the town. These are wide and adorned everywhere with trees and traversed by tramways. In the contrary direction to these boulevards there are streets that bend in a semicircle from the river to the river again where the most elegant residences are, and as we rode out after night, these homes were ablaze with electric lights, as were the streets. We wished for more time here, but after visiting the more important places, we hastened to Vienna. We arrived at Vienna on Ascension Day and as every place was closed (it being a holiday) we went around over the city and through its magnificent parks until night. We had only got seated at the table in the dining room, when a well known American walked in and greeted us pleasantly. It is needless to say that most of our party visited Buffalo Bill's wild west show that afternoon. Numerous excuses were made, some saying they had never had time to go when he had been around in this country, and others that they could not see Buffalo Bill every day in Austria.

That evening many of our party attended the opera. It is said that Viennese take to themselves the reputation of being the most musical people in Europe. It was here that the best works of Beethoven, Mozart and Haydn were produced. Vienna is certainly a pleasure seeking city, but it is also a hospitable one. They say for its wealth and size it stands next to London and Paris. Its streets are all broad and straight and almost every square is ornamented with a park, fountain or monument. The buildings are all very fine. The cathedral of St. Stephen that stands in the heart of the city is an elegant gothic structure. The interior is beautiful with sculpture and stained glass. But the church of the Augustines is the handsomest and is noted for the masterpiece of Canova. It consists of a pyramid of marble thirty feet high, in the center of which is the entrance to the vault, which is reached by two broad marble steps which are at the base of the pyramid. Ascending these steps we approach a figure representing Virtue bearing an urn containing the ashes of the deceased. By her side are two little girls carrying torches [illegible] them is a figure of Benevolence supporting an [illegible] Above [illegible] him, the very picture of [illegible] sorrow [illegible] able figure of [illegible] crouches a lion. Over the entrance to the vault is a medallion [illegible] Duchess [illegible] Happiness.

The church of the Capuchins contains the vault where are the bodies of the royal family.

The Imperial Royal [illegible] is certainly very fine and [illegible] [illegible] or velvet. [illegible]

[illegible] everywhere on the same [illegible] hills and mountains. I [illegible] wondered [illegible] why this river is so often spoken of as the the Blue Danube for it was an olive green. We only remained at Linz a few hours.

We reached Munich Saturday evening at about six o'clock and on getting to our hotel we found a large wedding party holding a reception in the house. We soon found that they did not observe the day, as we did, as they were all in full dress, and while the dining rooms were filled with dancers, others promenaded and sat around drinking their beer until almost daybreak.

We spent most of our time in Munich in the art gallery, as it is one of the finest in the world, and also visited the king's palace and the museum.

Munich is considered, in proportion to its size, one of the finest cities in Europe. It has a population of about one hundred and sixty thousand. Its public buildings are of various kinds and its many gardens, squares and monuments add much to its beauty, especially the monuments that are everywhere around the city.

We were told its public library was, next to Paris, the largest in the world. We went direct from Munich by rail, by the way of Stuttgart, to Heidelberg. There is but one principal street in Heidelberg, that is at least two miles in length, into which all the other streets run. It is situated in a valley with hills at the back, covered with dense foliage, while the rising ground on the opposite side of the river is covered with rich vineyards as far as the eye can reach. While it is a pretty town there is nothing to see or visit here but the university and the old castle. Many of our party visited the university and the students were easily recognized on the street by their scarred faces, got in duels, of which they are very proud.

The castle is situated on a hill high above the town. It is a solid square building, and it is noted for its immensity and architectural magnificence. We spent the morning in and around these ruins climbing to the top and then to the cellar beneath. These cellars are very extensive. We here saw the wine cask that held fifty-three thousand gallons of wine, and is so large on the top that there is a platform and balcony that was used in olden times for dancing. We went on top of this and saw how large it really was. This castle was begun in 1225, but has been destroyed several times. The view from the ruins and the gardens of the surrounding country is indeed grand.

From Heidelberg we went to Mayence, a city of about forty thousand inhabitants, situated on the Rhine. All through this country, after leaving Constantinople, were many fortifications, and in the open fields were soldiers drilling everywhere. This city is strongly fortified and has a garrison of six thousand soldiers. We attended a concert given one afternoon in the large park or garden. We spent but a day here and early on the second morning took the steamer for [illegible] down the Rhine.

The Rhine is known to everyone and needs no description, but anyone who has seen it will always remember the beauty of the vineyards, covering everywhere and interlaced with the [illegible] ruins. But for beautiful scenery we did not think it compared with the Danube, although we know the Rhine is considered the most beautiful river in the world.

[illegible] is a place of great antiquity and is situated on the left bank of the Rhine. It is the capital of the province and has a population of one hundred and fourteen thousand. It is [illegible] form of a crescent, closed [illegible] water. It is strongly fortified, [illegible] walls forming a circuit seven miles [illegible]. The chief sight is its magnificent cathedral that is the grandest [illegible] architecture in the world. It was begun in [illegible]. Its height and length [illegible] hundred and [illegible] The columns on the [illegible] are [illegible] carved. The stained glass [illegible] are per[illegible]. It was here [illegible] silver case [illegible] Wise Men from [illegible]

[illegible]

Many [illegible] are [illegible] here, and here is also buried the heart of Robert Bruce.

About three miles [illegible] the banks of the Tweed is the renowned mansion. The rooms remain as much like the way they were during Sir Walter's life as can be, and each one is full of interest. His library is a beautiful room with its fine volumes and elegant desks, and from its large windows the view is magnificent. The study is much as he left it, while the dining room contains many elegant portraits of the family.

We spent nearly a week in the lovely city of Edinburgh, the capital of Scotland. Through the center of this interesting city is a deep and wild ravine that divides the old town from the new. Its principal street is Princess street, where are found all the best hotels and the elegant monument of Sir Walter Scott.

We visited the house of John Knox and also his grave or the headstone that marks it, St. Giles cathedral and Holyrood, the ancient residence of the Scottish royalty. The most interesting rooms in the palace were those last occupied by the unfortunate Mary, and these are kept as she left them. One thing that appeared very strange to us was the long twilight they had in Scotland during that time of the year. At 10 o'clock we were still without lights and people were walking along the street reading papers and letters at that late hour, but still could I see very distinctly.

We visited every thing in Edinburgh that was to be seen. While in Edinburgh I received marked courtesy from Hon. Wallace Bruce, the distinguished lecturer, at present United States consul at Edinburgh. This arose from the fact that I had met Mr. Bruce before, and on account of his acquaintance with my brother and brother-in-law.

On Friday, June 6th, we went to Glasgow, where we embarked on the Anchor line steamer, Ethiopia, homeward bound. Margaret Shearer.

Free Baptist Church.

There will be preaching at this church Sunday morning and evening, services held in the basement.

Subject of morning discourse: "Witness of the spirit." Text, Romans 8:16, "The spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God."

At 7:30 p.m. the pastor will deliver his second discourse on Hebrews. Subject: "The son and angels contrasted." Hebrews 2:1-4.

A cordial welcome to all.

First Baptist Church.

At the First Baptist church, on East street, J. R. Downer pastor, preaching every Sunday, morning and evening; Sunday school, 9:45 a.m.; prayer meeting, Wednesday evening.

Sunday, Aug. 7: Morning text, John 21, 22, "If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou me." Evening text, Psalms 14:1, "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God."

All are cordially invited to attend these services.

Notice.

As receiver of the Chicago and Atlantic R'y, by virtue of orders of the United States Circuit Courts for the district of Indiana, the northern district of Illinois, and the northern district of Ohio, western division, I hereby give notice to creditors and claimants that all claims that shall not be filed in one or the other of said courts on or before October 1st, 1890, will be barred.

Volney T. Malott Receiver.
Chicago, Sept. 1st, 1890.

BROKEN OUT!

How often do we see this on the faces of children and, alas, of people who otherwise are healthy? What causes it? Bad Blood. The thought is terrible; the trouble is worse. No ordinary help can remove it. It requires something unusual. Do not take cheap Sarsaparillas or blood purifiers. You must have something that has proven its power in both Europe and America. General Wheatcroft Nelson, of London, says: "My experience in the English army, as well as in America, convinces me that nothing so thoroughly purifies the blood, and is to the health, vigor and life, as Dr. Acker's English Blood Elixir."

This grand Elixir is sold by Druggists in all parts of America. It is a good, pure, honest medicine. Try it today.

For sale by H. C. Roseman & Co. and W. R. Foye

FRAME & BEICHER,
Undertakers and Furniture Dealers!
HEADQUARTERS FOR PARLOR SUITS PATENT ROCKERS
EASY CHAIRS COUCHES BEDROOM SETS
OAK PLUSH ROCKERS IN GREAT VARIETIES
SIDEBOARDS FANCY OAK TABLES
Etc., at prices to compete with any Furniture dealer in Central Ohio.

UNDERTAKING

Our Undertaking Department is complete. All calls attended to promptly, day or night. Bodies Embalmed and prepared carefully by the latest approved methods, at reasonable prices. For conducting funerals we need no recommendations.

FISHER BLOCK, WEST CENTER STREET, MARION, OHIO.

SPECIAL FALL AND WINTER ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE
Blue Front Clothing House.

OUR stock of Fall Clothing is now complete. That it is the largest goes without saying, and a careful comparison of prices will convince you that the Blue Front is the place to purchase your Fall Supply. Our complete stock of SUITS AND FALL OVERCOATS!

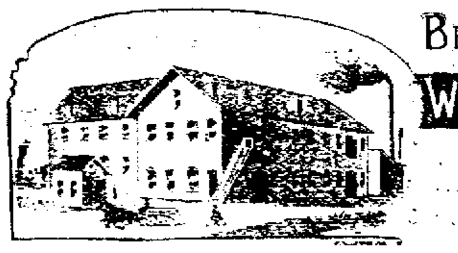
IS open for your inspection—clean, new and fresh goods of all qualities, from the finest materials made in the perfection of the tailors' art to the medium and low grades. Mothers, you who are looking for the place where you can clothe your boys to the best advantage, we call your attention to our

BOYS' AND CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT!

GREAT care has been taken in selecting goods for this department, and we are certain that we can please you better than any establishment in Marion county. We have all the Latest Novelties that can be found in the market, and are fully prepared to please all—from the little 3-year-old to the youth in full dress. In fact, never was such a fine stock of goods throughout placed under one roof as can now be seen at the

BLUE FRONT CLOTHING HOUSE
Opposite Hotel Marion, Marion, O.



BRYAN, FIELD, BEVER & CO.
WOOD WORKING MANUFACTURERS.
CONTRACTING & BUILDING
MARION, O.
WE MAKE A SPECIALTY
OF CONTRACTING
AND BUILDING!
And will furnish Estimates on Short Notice. Do not fail to see us for Wood Mantles and Fine Interior Finishings!
Doing our own manufacturing we are prepared to please you at THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES.
Remember, our office has been removed to our new works, as given above. Open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Local Time Card.

[illegible]

TO WEAK MEN
Suffering from the effects of youthful errors, early decay, wasting weakness, lost manhood, etc., I will send a valuable treatise (sealed) containing full particulars for home cure, FREE of charge. A splendid medical work; should be read by every man who is nervous and debilitated. Address, Prof. F. C. FOWLER, Moodus, Conn.

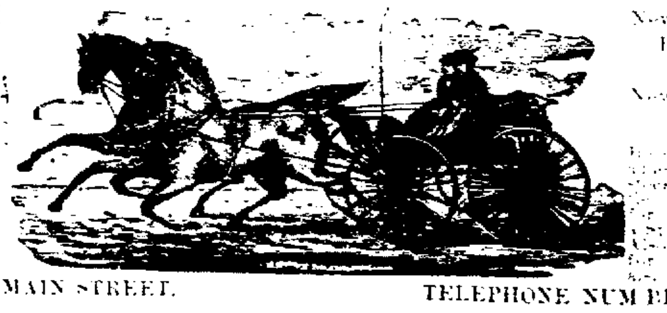
OYSTERS!
The leading Oyster House in Marion is
THE ENGLISH KITCHEN.
The best brands on hand, fresh at all times. Sold by can or served to order.
B. HALL, Proprietor.

Main Street Livery Stable.
WELAND & VANATTA
New Horses and New Rigs.



NORTH MAIN STREET. TELEPHONE NUMBER 10.

ECKHART'S

Merchant Tailoring, Furnishing

AND

CLOTHING HOUSE

MERCHANT TAILORING CLOTHING AND FURNISHING

In this department we offer you the services of Mr. P. Grumm, one of the [illegible] of Ohio, together with [illegible] of English, French and American [illegible].

CUTTING and FIT-GUARANTEED!

[illegible] the Marion trade. Our work [illegible] reputation unrivalled, [illegible] style and fit.

In Ready-made Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods we take no back seat for anyone.

SELL our fall Black cheviots 4-button ed Overcoats for $12

It has no equal anywhere, the most complete garment ever offered for the money, and Black Goods are the popular craze.

AN Elegant Line of CHILDREN'S CLOTHING at prices that make the suits desirable.

Eckhart Eckhart

THE HOME

STEAM LAUNDRY

Opens for Business

MONDAY, SEPT'R 8.

To the People of Marion:

The Home Steam Laundry, a new solicitor for Marion patronage, will open for business on Monday, Sept. 8th. The undersigned have fitted up a first-class Steam Laundry in the Kerr House block, back of Farmers' Bank, supplied with the very best machinery, that will be operated with experienced hands. This enables us to solicit patronage with a guarantee that all work shall be of a quality unexcelled anywhere—we except no city —and all orders will be filled promptly.

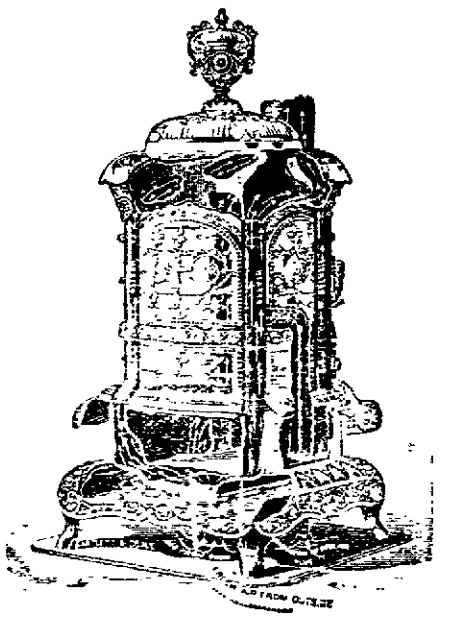
Goods will be called for and delivered free of charge. Of course all orders brought to the Laundry will be appreciated, but we will cheerfully call for them if name and address is only left with us or sent in. We solicit at least a trial.

Yours Obediently,

CUSTER & FRIES.

Home Steam Laundry.

STERLING VENTILATOR!



Time Tried

AND Proved Good!

The most powerful Heater of its class! Thorough Ventilation! Economical, Durable and EASILY OPERATED!

Takes Cold Air from the Bottom and sends out Hot Air at the Top! Works just LIKE A FURNACE.

THE ONLY THOROUGH HEATING DEVICE DISCOVERED. Remember the "STERLING!"

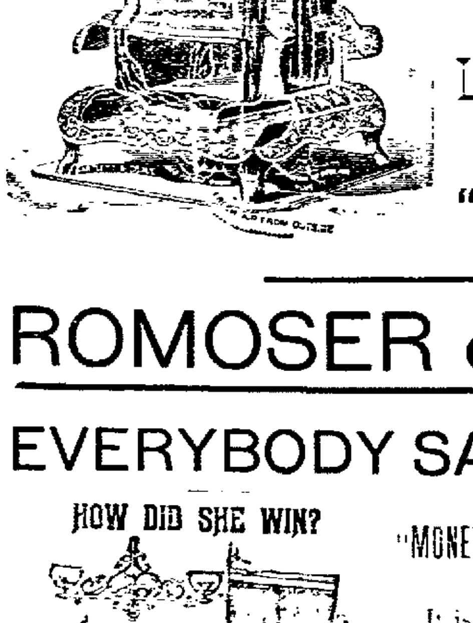
ROMOSER & WREN.

EVERYBODY SAVE MONEY!

HOW DID SHE WIN?



—FOR—

"MONEY SAVED IS MONEY EARNED."

It is impossible for people to save money in making their purchases if they will continue to rush blindly into the first store they come to and buy the goods wanted without first calling on the firm's opposition and getting prices. We claim that our stock of is the largest and best selected stock ever in the city, and all we ask is for you to call before buying elsewhere and get our prices.

FURNITURE

WILLIAM FIES,

Fies King Block, Marion, Ohio.

ANSWER TO FENCE, TREES AND SQUARE.

Cut [illegible] are in center of head, using center square and one-fourth of each surrounding square.

—Mrs. Rev. E. Wallace visited friends at Fostoria Friday and today.

—Mrs. W. H. Smith returned Friday from a visit with friends at Chicago.

—[illegible] the Upper Sandusky Chief, M. A. Beaver attended a reunion of the first regiment of O. V. I., held [illegible] Thursday.

—[illegible] from a [illegible] Mr. Smith [illegible] for [illegible] a very pleasant occupation.

—The East School building is somewhat ahead of the other schools. The pupils line in order and march up and down the stairs at all intervals, at the beat of a drum.

—R. P. McCollum, the youngest and 5-year-old son of W. F. McCollum, died this afternoon at 1 o'clock, at the home of his parents on the corner of Oak and Silver streets. The funeral services will be held at the house tomorrow at 2 o'clock p. m.

—Police business has been comparatively quiet today up to noon, although the city prison contains about a half dozen inmates who were locked up for safe keeping. Fourteen special policemen were put on duty this morning, to remain until after the departure of the circus.

—The 8-months-old child of George Wilson, colored, of Cleveland, died at the home of A. T. Henderson, on north West street, Friday, of cholera infantum. The parents of the child arrived here Thursday from Cleveland on a visit, when the little one was taken sick. The remains were taken to Cleveland today for burial.

—J. W. Hill, consulting engineer of the Marion sewer construction, arrived in the city Friday night from Cincinnati. Mr. Hill is here for the purpose of making the monthly estimate of the work on the sewer that is complete, so that the men doing the work can draw their pay. About one-third of the outfall sewer is now completed.

—It is expected to close up the stock subscriptions to the I. C. Wyman & Co. manufactory next week. About $1500 in subscriptions were taken this week, and about three-fourths of the required $20,000 stock has been taken. This promises an assured success, and according to the original intentions, the company's works will be built during this fall.

A BRILLIANT EVENT

The Tennis Club Ball, in Honor of Kenton Guests, a Delightful Success.

The dancing season was certainly very brilliantly inaugurated Friday evening by the elegant ball given by the Marion Tennis Club, in honor of their Kenton guests who were to have contested a series of games Friday afternoon, had the weather permitted. The dance was all the more enjoyable, however, on account of the omission of the games, for the gay participants were not tired by the dashing exercise of racketing the ball.

Post's Orchestra, of Mansfield, began the grand March at 8:30 and between thirty and forty couples were led by M. A. Turney and Miss Mitchell, of Urbana, in the opening number. Then followed the various dances of a choice program of twenty numbers. The music was excellent and the social charm and grace of the brilliant party made the occasion one of extreme delight.

The Kenton guests present were the Misses Harris, Scott, Gibson, Letson, Fletcher and Douglas and Mrs. Wendt, and Messrs. Will Wendt, Carl Philips and Hugh Runkle.

THE CROLIUS COMEDY CO

What They Thought of Them In Parkersburg, W. Va.

Parkersburg Daily Journal.

To say that the opening of the Crolius Comedy Co. was a grand success, is but giving a mild testimonial of the cordial patronage accorded it last night. The house was packed throughout, up stairs and down, and long before the curtain was rung up there was scarcely standing room anywhere, and the management have every reason to feel highly flattered that their efforts to provide a first-class attraction for fair week have been appreciated. The principal attraction of the evening was the appearance of Richard P. Crolius, the comedian, this being his third appearance here. Storm Beaten was the play last evening and we would say that this is an excellent melodrama, having had a long run in the New York Theatres. This company now has the exclusive right to produce Storm Beaten, with all of the gorgeous scenery and costumes which they use for their opening bill, and this is by far the best repertoire company that ever played in Parkersburg and Mr. Crolius is still the same funny fellow.

The Circus.

Sells Bros. and Barrett's combined shows were late arriving in the city today [illegible] over the C. and T. [illegible] at Lancaster Friday and [illegible] of rain, and [illegible] A large [illegible] country people are in the city [illegible] patiently until 1 o'clock [illegible] parade. The parade was a [illegible] and attractive [illegible] The menagerie were [illegible] would be [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a [illegible] after the [illegible]

[illegible] a constant cough [illegible] was greatly reduced in [illegible] [illegible] Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and after using two bottles of this medicine, was completely cured. —Anga A. Lewis, Ricard, N. Y.

MARION PUBLIC SCHOOLS

High School Organization and the Roster of Teachers for the Year.

The High School has been divided into two sections for literary work. These are to be organized into literary societies.

On [illegible] the following officers have [illegible] President [illegible] Orlie Rapp, vice president, Ocella Seffner, [illegible] Miss Fite. The following committees were appointed for this section: On constitution, Nellie Edwards, Dora Smith, Miss Fite; on exercises, Ocella Seffner, Carrie Linsley, Earl Kennedy, Miss Fite. This section will choose a class motto next week.

The other section chose the following officers: President, Frederick Dombaugh; vice president, Ada Bowen; secretary, Katherine Turney; critic, Miss Hill. The following committees were appointed: On constitution, Emerson Fite, Fred Titus, Miss Hill; on order of exercises, Florence Dix, Froma Gracely, Clara Johnston, Miss Hill. The second section chose Longfellow as the name. A motto will be chosen next week.

Great interest is manifested among the High School pupils in their studies and the literary work. The prospect for successful year's work is certainly excellent.

THE ROSTER OF TEACHERS

Since the vacancies are filled the roster of teachers in the various departments are as follows:

CENTRAL BUILDING.

High School—Abbie Hill, principal; Anna Fite, assistant.

A Grammar—Gertrude Kirkpatrick.

B Grammar—Mrs. H. J. Emery.

C Grammar—Nettie L. Zuck.

D Grammar—Hattie E. Peters.

A Primary—Mrs. Eva E. Osborne.

B Primary—Emma Cunningham.

C Primary—Kate Tron.

D Primary—Alice Edwards.

EAST BUILDING.

A Grammar and principal—Lizzie S. Ruehrmund.

B Grammar—Hattie A. Johnson.

C Grammar—Lottie E. Ward.

D Grammar—Laura J. Treese.

A Primary—Lide H. Mapes.

B Primary—May Hain.

D Primary—Clara Kowalke.

NORTH BUILDING.

A Primary and principal—Louise Cunningham.

B Primary—Jennie D. Peters.

C Primary—Hattie M. Christian.

D Primary—Mrs. S. P. Gregg.

SOUTH BUILDING.

D Grammar and principal—Emma Ruehrmund.

A and B Primary—Ethel Cunningham.

C Primary—Lizzie Frank.

D Primary—Abbie A. Gast.

WEST MARION.

Primary—Emma Thompson.

SILVER STREET.

A and B Primary—Emma Smith.

C and D Primary—Lida Llewellyn.

GARDEN CITY PIKE.

Primary—Libbie Dairy.

Superintendent—Arthur Powell.

Superintendent's office in Central Building. Office hours 8:30 to 9:30 a. m., 1:30 to 2:00 p. m.

Delsarte Instruction.

Miss Belle Johnston desires to announce to the public that she is prepared to teach the Delsarte system of physical training. She has given special attention to that part of the Delsarte work, which seeks primarily to secure, not muscular development, but easily controlled movement, and the natural use and expression of our nerve and muscle machine. Physical habits have a reflex action upon the inner nature. Train a boy's muscle in aggressive fighting lines only, and we develop similar inner desires. Allow a girl to habitually express carelessness, diffidence, or self-abasement by her physical bearing, and we plant corresponding moral views in her nature. Likewise, higher physical training becomes higher character building. The dignified attitude dignifies the feeling.

The Delsarte philosophy teaches how to train the nerves, how to rest, and how to move and act with economy of force. The Delsarte gymnastics develop habitual grace. They break up bad physical habits and establish natural ones.

The Delsarte exercises are intended for the old as well as the young, and especially do they appeal to the nervous, overworked people. They also overcome that abnormal physical condition—corpulency.

Miss Johnston will be happy to explain the system more thoroughly than can be done in this limited space, and to that end extends an invitation to women and young girls whom she will be pleased to meet at City Hall Tuesday evening, Sept. 9th, at half past seven o'clock. 2t —Mrs. G. Leffler has returned home from a week's visit with her daughter at Columbus.

CONGRESSIONAL POSSIBILITIES

What Figure Marion County is Expected to Cut at Carey.

A mass democratic [illegible] held at City Hall [illegible] elect delegates to represent Marion county [illegible] congressional [illegible] at Carey [illegible] W[illegible] Marion [illegible] last [illegible] Hon. [illegible] Young.

The district will have 178 delegates, distributed as follows: Seneca 41, Hardin 35, Union 27, Wyandot 26, Marion 33.

Mr. Young's friends claim for him in addition to the local delegation, Union and Wyandot, which will give him 83 votes, seven less than the ninety necessary to a choice. It is hoped that these seven votes can be obtained from Seneca, in case Seney proves a formidable candidate. It is claimed that Doc Norton, the auditor of Seneca county, railroad commissioner and what not, is antagonistic to Seney, and it is thought by his influence the coveted seven votes can be obtained, providing Wyandot and Union can be controlled by Marion's candidate. These counties have no one in the race, except a possible appearance of a dark horse.

This is about the way the local democracy is looking over the ground, but there is still a possibility of hope being dashed to the earth when the strange mutations of the convention begin to materialize.

Suspicious Actions.

W. H. McClure, of the milling firm of Darmody & McClure, encountered two suspicious characters at his home near the mill Friday night. Mr. McClure had been attending a meeting of his lodge during the evening, and on returning home about 11 o'clock found two men prowling about his home. They approached within a few feet of him, but when he spoke to them they jumped the fence and ran. The night was too dark to distinguish their faces, but Mr. McClure is of the impression that the men were masked. He went up town afterwards and informed the police of the affair to put them on their guard, but nothing was seen of the fellows afterwards.

To Dispel Colds,

Headaches and fevers, to cleanse the system effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them, use Syrup of Figs.

Cheap Excursion West and Northwest.

On Sept. 9th, 23d and Oct. 14th, the popular Chicago, St. Paul and Kansas City R'y will sell excursion tickets at one fare for the round trip to the West and Northwest. For rates and information, address sawtw J. A. GRANGER, O. P. A.

23 Clinton Bld'g, Columbus, O.

Attention, Veterans!

Meeting of the veterans on Tuesday night, Sept. 9, at moulders' hall, Fisher block, at 7:30 p.m., to organize a Union Veteran Union post.

By order of committee.

MILLINERY

You can always find the

LATEST STYLES

—IN—

Fall and Winter

Goods, at Lowest Prices, at

W. A. SELLERS & CO.'S,

UNION BLOCK, SOUTH MAIN STREET

HANGING and STAND LAMPS

At Prices to Suit the Purchaser.

PICTURES!

PICTURES FRAMED TO ORDER!

SCHOOL TABLETS OF ALL KINDS

A Beautiful Stand Lamp will be given away October 1st, a ticket given with every School Tablet, also with every 25c worth of goods bought. We invite you to look at our stock of goods and get prices.

EMMET DRAKE,

DENTIST

OFFICE: Over K[illegible] hardware store, north Main street.

Prices Reasonable. All Work Warranted

VAUGHAN & ALLEN,

PLUMBERS!

STEAM AND GAS FITTERS,

226 North Main Street.

In order that we may not carry a large stock of hose over winter we are selling 15c and 16c hose for 13c [illegible] hose carriage thrown in with every 100 feet. We guarantee this hose for one year. Lawn sprinklers at cost.

CALL AND SEE THEM.

SCHOOL BOOKS!

AND

SCHOOL SUPPLIES

OF

EVERY DSCRIPTION

AT

L. DENISON & CO.'S,

MASONIC BLOCK.

Always the Lowest Prices.

COAL! COAL!

Buy your Coal at once from

PRENDERGASTS

And save Twenty-five Per Cent.

COAL! COAL!

Marion County Fair!

TO BE HELD AT

MARION, OHIO,

ON

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday,

Sept. 30, Oct. 1, 2 and 3, '90.

$8000 in PREMIUMS

The Premium List has been revised and enlarged, and includes nearly all articles entered for exhibition. Competition in all classes cordially invited.

BEAUTIFUL AND SHADED GROUNDS!

$10,000 EXPENDED IN NEW BUILDINGS AND HALLS!

Grounds well supplied with water and all conveniences for the comfort of both exhibitors and visitors. Ample accommodations are provided for stock of all kinds.

EXCITING RACES—TROTTING, RUNNING, PACING!

Each day of the Fair, on one of the best half mile tracks in the State. Liberal purses are offered in all the classes.

INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION!

Exemplifying the remarkable products of the Farm and Dairy, the skilled handiwork of the Household, and the wonderful progress of the Mechanical Arts and Sciences.

Horses, Cattle and Sheep!

Marion County is noted as being one of the best in the State for producing the best stock of Horses, Cattle and Sheep, and this year will excel all former years in the exhibit of Stock of all kinds.

THE POULTRY EXHIBIT

Will include choice specimens of all the noted strains, and for excellence and variety this department will be unsurpassed.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE DISPLAYS

Illustrating the bounties of Nature with specimens remarkable for size and beauty.

The Ladies' Department!

Will attract universal interest and contain hundreds of useful household products.

GRAND FLORAL DISPLAY

Complete in extent and variety, and surpassing that of all previous exhibitions.

EXCURSION RATES ON ALL RAILROADS!

L. LEFFLER, ... PRESIDENT.
H. M. ALLEN, ... SECRETARY.

SEND FOR A PREMIUM LIST!

ADMISSION, 25c TO ALL PARTS OF THE GROUNDS

COME ONE. COME ALL!

CHASE & HUNTER,

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

No. 38.	Fine house, large lot with fruit, near shops, for.....	$2000
" 37.	Brick house, 8 rooms, 3 lots, barn, well and cistern,	3000
" 36.	Large and small house with lot, respectively, $1000 and	500
" 35.	House of 3 rooms, cellar, shed, barn, two lots, fruit, well and cistern..........	1000
" 34.	Lot 200, house, barn, fruit; central; cheap,........	2100
" 33.	New house and barn, nice lot; near fair ground,....	1600
" 32.	Brick residence, beautiful lot, opp. Union S. B.,....	7500
" 31.	Large frame house, lot, stable, cellar, fruit, etc.,....	3300

[illegible] large [illegible] small [illegible] lot on Grand [illegible] central location very cheap at [illegible] house, large barn, large lot, corner South and Windsor streets [illegible] worth $[illegible]

MONEY to LOAN

On Farm and City Property by the "Perpetual" Saving and Building Association, on first mortgage, at low rates of interest. Loan can be paid at option of borrower, in short or long time. No life insurance required. Apply to Chase & Hunter, agents, Marion, Ohio.

NYE REVIEWS A BOOK.

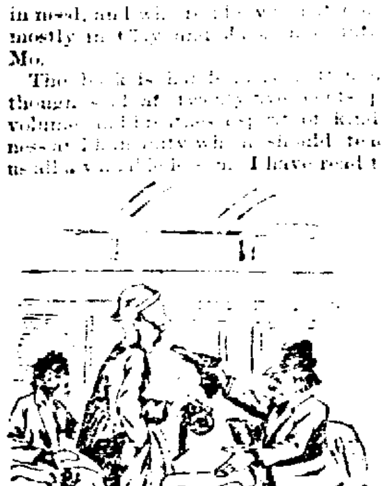
HE WRITES OF THE [illegible] OF THE YOUNGER [illegible]

They Were Very Fond of [illegible] and Largely Given to Prayer—The Awful Tale of a Precipice—Something About Prodigal Sons.

[Copyright by Edgar W. [illegible]]

There has been re[illegible] hands for review a[illegible] colored literature, is[illegible] trade, which is a re[illegible] services of the Y[illegible] as it will be [illegible] for some years [illegible] funds and g[illegible] in need, and [illegible] mostly in Clay and J[illegible] Mo.

The book is [illegible] though [illegible] of twenty [illegible] cents per volume [illegible] of kindliness [illegible] which should teach us all a [illegible]. I have read the entire book carefully because I did not desire to judge it unfairly. My attention was especially called to it because I had heard so much of the devout spirit manifested especially by Coleman Younger, both before and since his incarceration.



ROBBING INNOCENT PASSENGERS.

It is only fair that the world should know the truth about both the Youngers and the Jameses, and that while they were at times unconventional and almost rude they were really at heart refined and devout. Coleman Younger or Cole, as he was called by his publishers, who of course naturally feel most intimate with him, having no doubt often exchanged ideas with him as to methods of working that would be profitable without involving too much risk or brain fag, was the son of Henry Washington Younger, a native of Kentucky, who afterward moved to Jackson county, Mo. Mr. Younger, Sr., never did much, aside from becoming the father of the Younger brothers, that would serve to pass his name down in history. Having successfully done this he died suddenly by request of many citizens. The elder Younger, if such a term be proper, began to wield a lasting influence over his sons, however, before his death; for while Cole was at school he was quite rude, and sometimes fatally injured his playmates in thoughtless glee, and as a result of pure animal spirits which he carried almost constantly concealed about his person. As a result of this the teacher threatened to whip Coleman. The elder Younger then informed the little pallid tutor that if he did so he, the elder Younger, would whip the little pale teacher. Many boys with parents like that have grown up, gone into society, and at last put on the beautiful tennis suits worn so extensively at Sing Sing. Later on, growing heated over a discussion with the teacher regarding the question whether "polonaise" was or was not the correct orthography of the style of overskirt then being largely worn in Clay county, the Younger brothers inserted the tutor in the river, head first, through a hole in the ice, and left him there in a most compromising position. This was the origin of the expression "getting a man in a hole" which has since come into popular favor, having been used by Undertaker Merritt this summer when Dr. McGonegal brought him the body of Annie Goodwin at 3 a. m. in his gig and asked him to kindly bury it for him.

The tutor was pulled out by [illegible] finally, and he said then [illegible] him that if the Younger boys didn't be "different" they would come to a bad end, possibly several of such.

Cole Younger has become such an [illegible]est, consistent Christian since his incarceration in the penitentiary that he ought not to be raked up here, except, be, perhaps, to show that he has had a great deal to overcome in trying to lead a Christian life in a penitentiary, where there are so many temptations to be frivolous and gay.

Some years ago there was a robbery on the Rock Island road [illegible] miles east of C[illegible] Cole Younger and J[illegible] "threw" the [illegible] point. It was [illegible] beautiful summer S[illegible] now kindly [illegible] the rails and l[illegible] into the cut and wr[illegible] the sunrise of that Sabbath [illegible] when poor Rafferty, the [illegible] ashy face and staring eyes [illegible] toward the quiet sky [illegible] his engine. He [illegible] today [illegible] his engine [illegible] he had [illegible] people would have [illegible] of miles to see [illegible] he found salvation [illegible] tent.

The boys now had [illegible] selves. They began [illegible] apologize Mr. Y[illegible] carried a Bible with [illegible]

[illegible] the Y[illegible] Cole [illegible] Younger.

[illegible] three [illegible] stolen, and [illegible] ten on [illegible] stable who were [illegible] robbers [illegible]. In an instant Cole Y[illegible] down and leveled [illegible] forward with [illegible] indicating [illegible] hands as [illegible] would almost [illegible] like the [illegible] in the front of the almanac they were halted.

"Where are you going?" asked Coleman Younger in a rich [illegible] voice.

"We are hunting for the Youngers, who robbed the train on the Rock Island road," said the deputy, who had [illegible] but [illegible] had never [illegible] with [illegible].

"You [illegible]" [illegible] Coleman Younger. "Well, [illegible] company!"

He was almost [illegible] on the subject of prayer, Coleman Younger. He did [illegible] at the most inopportune times, and showed great intolerance that way.

"What do you mean?" asked the trembling wretch.

"I mean you have got ten minutes by our large and [illegible] assortment of watches to get ready for the other world, and I don't want to send any man to the other world unprepared."

He was always that way. He didn't want to see a deputy sheriff die in a crude state. Ten minutes soon passed, and then the men were blindfolded. They were not far from the steep bluffs of the Missouri, some of which were 300 feet high. The three men, with their eyes bandaged, were taken to a cliff and swung over it so that they caught by their hands. Below was a perpendicular wall.

"Hold on as long as you can," said the eccentric robber, "and when you fall that will be the end of you."

With that the helpless men were left, and above the tumultuous beating of their own hearts they heard the clatter of retreating hoofs. You can dimly imagine the horror of such a situation. The cold, glittering stars looked down upon them, but they saw them not. With bandaged eyes and sinking hearts they clung to the verge of life until their nerveless fingers one after another relaxed, and with a deep moan they fell to the bottom, a distance of nearly four feet!

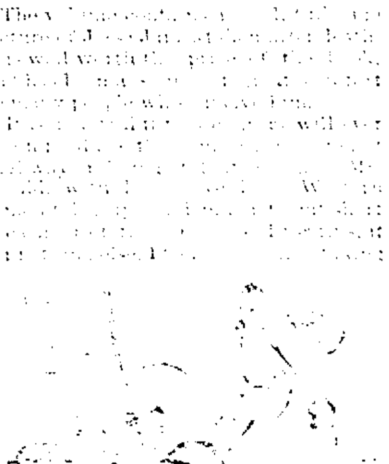
As soon as they recovered they went home with a feeling toward the Younger boys which almost amounted to resentment.

The book is full of interest, and shows that the James and Younger people regard themselves [illegible] more sinned against than sinning. They always excused themselves for killing people on the ground that [illegible] had not treated them well. They [illegible] kept alive the old war sentiment, and instead of leaving the resentment and animosities, they allowed their strong political likes and dislikes to warp their better judgment.

John Younger was less dignified than Coleman. He was more apt to be mercurial, and, during [illegible] in a barroom at [illegible] he was feeling quite chipper under the [illegible] of Texas vintages which [illegible] just near enough to [illegible] gentleman who sat around the place. John [illegible] with another man that he could [illegible] with [illegible] the nose. [illegible] lost.

They [illegible] pictured [illegible] It [illegible] worth the price [illegible]

[illegible]



[illegible]

[illegible] Who are to blame for [illegible] Indians. The same is true [illegible] When the Youngers [illegible] that the [illegible] were being persecuted [illegible] they had been under [illegible]. The[illegible] encouraged [illegible] from bad to worse, robbing [illegible], while many [illegible] Clay, Jackson and [illegible] them and de[illegible] persecuted for political reasons.

All this may be true, but it is of little use, I find, to appeal to the moral nature of a county. It is a thankless task. You may talk to a county and appeal to its better nature till you are black in the face, and it will not even feel ashamed of itself. It is a good deal so with congress. I have done much to prevent congress from bringing my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave, but what has been the result? Members have gone on parties with each other in a brain sapping way, while as a body I can truthfully say that congress never even went away by itself for a single moment to consider what I have said.

Returning again to the subject of a tacit encouragement of lawlessness on the part of communities or parents, I must say that they are the parties who suffer at last. Willful blindness to the defects and misdemeanors of a child especially brings its sorrowful reward to the parent at last, while careful and wholesome discipline are sure to pay the painstaking parent in the end.

I once knew a dark haired lad whom I will call Henry Escariot. He was a bright boy, of a little more than my own age. His father was severe with him, and many a time and oft as I went in swimming with Henry I have seen parental welts on him as wide and cerulean as the back of a bluefish.

Henry used to steal movable things from my desk at school and barter them to others. He grew to manhood and stole a horse. He was arrested and tried and found guilty. Before he was sent to the penitentiary he got hold of a case knife, however, and with it he dug his way out. Taking a few whiffs of the fresh young morning he lit out for home.

The next morning, while reading the paper, the old man espied Henry while he was yet a great way off, and knew him. Calling him in he had a large and arrogant gobbler killed for him, and while Henry ate this toothsome bird the old man telegraphed the sheriff and turned him over to the authorities, receiving therefor the reward not only of a perfectly limpid conscience, but eight hundred dollars ($800) in cash.

So I say that parents who do their plain though painful duty by their children in that way are almost sure of a reward.

Bill Nye

They Knew Him.

"Success in life may depend somewhat on circumstances, but it depends more on the individual," said Mr. Skute, who is noted for his wealth and penurious habits.

"Just so," said Billson, one of the millionaire's audience.

"When I first came to this town I had half a crown. Now, what do you suppose I did with it?"

"Oh, that's an easy one," said Billson. "Anybody who knows you, Skute, would know what you did with that half crown."

"Well, what did I do with it?"

"Why, you've got it yet."—Chatter.

Daring the Dry Season.

Fanny (after ringing the door bell)—Just look at the dust on our shoes, Ethel. I hate to go into Mrs. McAlliame's parlor looking so.

Ethel—Just turn your head the other way, Fanny.

Fanny (two seconds later)—Why-ee! Ethel [illegible], where's all that dust that was on your shoes?

Ethel (whispering)—On my stockings. [illegible]

Couldn't Escape.

[illegible] my wife." [illegible]

A Diplomatic Dodge.

[illegible]

Was Indeed.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Boston Courier.

IF SHE HELD THE REINS!

[illegible] WOMAN USUALLY MORE [illegible] [illegible] THAN MAN.

A Tally-ho Driven by Women—Who Should Be Collector of Customs of the Port of New York?—A Female Ambassador—The Bride's Bowlder.

[Copyright, [illegible]]

It was in Washington, and I was in one of the semiprivate rooms of the [illegible] committee [illegible] such like dignitaries. I was there [illegible] something which I wished, and to prevent something I did not wish, and recently [illegible] the mind of a very positive person [illegible] no intention of [illegible] I was lobbying, and with what result I need not here mention, although it is marvelous sometimes to see what formidable nets can be gnawed asunder by the teeth of very little mice, and also how ungrateful the lion generally is as soon as he is free.

On this particular occasion the interview was cut short by a messenger sent to hasten my friend to his seat in the house, and as he escaped he flung back the Parthian arrow:

"If women held the reins now!"

For hours after the phrase rang in my ears. If women held the reins! Would things be better or worse for the women, for the men, for the country?

If a woman held the power of appointment to public office, for instance? If I could [illegible] who should be our next minister to Spain? If I were president or secretary of state?

That evening, as I chatted with half a dozen women, all of them bright, clever, wide awake sort that are to be met more surely in Washington than anywhere else that I am familiar with, I suddenly propounded the query, "If any one of you had the power, whom would you make collector of the port of New York in case of a vacancy?"

"Jones, of course!"

"Oh, no! Brown by all means!"

"Robinson is my man!"

"Smith!"

"Black!"

"Lake!"

"Green!"

"White!"

"Gray!" chorused nine positive voices, while in my [illegible] murmured [illegible] "Why not Le Blanc?" [illegible]

"And now let us all give our real reasons for our nominations, and see whose are the weightiest."

"Well, Mr. Jones is a friend of mine, and I know he would like the nomination, and why shouldn't he have it?"

"And Brown has just failed, poor man, and needs the income."

"Robinson met us abroad last year and was so nice and gentlemanly; he'd let all my things through the custom house free of duty."

"Mr. Smith did better than that, for he was on the Caledonia when I came home alone last autumn, and he put a lot of things for Ned and Charlie in his own trunk as if they were his own."

"Like Mr. Black, who told me how to hide my laces so they never were suspected!"

"Mr. Lake married my cousin, and they mean to live in New York."

"But Tom Green is such an awfully nice fellow, and always hard up, poor fellow! He's run through all his property."

"Yes, but you know White is a great yachtsman, and just fancy the moonlight parties, and breakfasts on board government steamers and all that sort of thing!"

"We are under great obligation to Mr. Gray, and I believe the salary of the collector of New York is something fabulous, is it not?"

"And Le Blanc is such a feature at my receptions with his nautical songs that a maritime appointment seems to heighten his values, as the artists say," concluded [illegible] and then [illegible] chattered of one thing and another [illegible] sprite [illegible] in my ear, "If women held the reins!"

But after all, while men hold the reins, are political appointments made from so much higher motives than these? Does not one man vote and labor for his friend to be nominated clerk of the pantry because he expects to get bread and cheese for less than its value, or for nothing at all, and doesn't the man who wants the post office at Cranberry Center vote for the postmaster general who will give it him?

Personal likes and dislikes [illegible] men as much as they do women, and very few men [illegible] as women [illegible] I have quoted.

[illegible]

[illegible] veterans of the Old Guard [illegible]

[illegible] any rights at all? [illegible] What if women seize [illegible]

[illegible] bowlders will descend [illegible] it will make very [illegible] event, for I think [illegible] the earth turns over every [illegible] we like it or not, and just as it [illegible] about the sun quite oblivious of what Galileo or the pope may decide, so the woman question is one [illegible] of the men or of the women [illegible]. The Sleeping Beauty has waked up and declines to go to sleep again. It remains to be seen what she will do next.

Still I don't think she will take command of the Grand Army just yet; I don't think she will be allowed to seize the reins even if she wants to. Men, like other ponderous and simple forces in nature, move slowly and take some time to get up their momentum, but are also rather difficult to control when they have once started.

I was once on an Alp, a very easy one, I assure you, and watched an enthusiastic young bride who, under her husband's admiring gaze, was trying to detach a small bowlder from its bed and send it crashing down the mountain side. She pushed, she pried with her own alpenstock until she broke it, and then with his she got very pretty pink in the face, and tore her little gloves; she set her teeth and compressed her lips; in fact she did her honest best, and after a while raised the stone to the edge of its shelf, where it hung as it were by a thread. Even then she could have pushed it back, and it would have settled down as sturdily as ever. She might have sat upon it, danced on it, snapped her fingers at it and left it to vegetate forever as she found it; but instead she laid aside her alpenstock, and with one touch of her dainty foot overcame the last atom of resistance and sent the great solid thing upon its downward way.

What a noise it made! How it splintered itself and the other rocks! How it crushed and tore and maimed the flowers and shrubs and all the soft green things it encountered! How quickly and remorselessly it would have killed that little bride had she got in its way!

Something of this fancy passed through her own mind, I imagine, for after watching its downward course for a moment she drew back very pale and quiet, and putting her hand in her husband's arm drew him silently away.

Well, it isn't a good plan to set the bowlder rolling unless you are quite sure it can't harm you, and also that you don't want to use it any more; it is safer to edge it along to just the place you want it in, and then block it and shore it up and make it fast with a thousand little pebbles, each with a different name. There is always time enough to spurn it down the precipice if we want it out of the way. That, however, is not very likely to occur. However much a woman may like to handle the reins, I think she always likes to have a man upon the box with her to see how neatly she does it. I don't know that I ever saw a mail coach driven and occupied by women only, although I have seen a tally-ho party where a fair Amazon held the ribbons and used the whip, generally more recklessly than the man who sat beside her would have done; and let it not be forgotten that all men agree in accusing gentle woman of driving horses more cruelly, with less consideration and less self control than most men show toward them.

Is not that rather an ominous consideration in the question, What if women held the reins? Would not the coach of state be in some danger of breaking down if it were recklessly and intemperately driven?

A woman, especially if she has brains and energy, generally knows what end she means to attain, and is as unscrupulous as the great Napoleon in attaining it. She wishes to distance her rival in the race. How pitilessly she lashes her horses, how recklessly she drives over the prostrate body of her favorite dog, how little she cares for the rocking and tilting of the coach! [illegible]

[illegible] whole. It would be like a Prince [illegible]

Rupert's desperate [illegible] by a [illegible] and fallen at one flash from an apparently [illegible] mass to a heap [illegible]. Of course the mass [illegible] we will call public [illegible] lieve it is safe to say [illegible] women know the article [illegible] and not one woman in a hundred [illegible] all without.

Don't we read of floods of [illegible] tears [illegible] really use her [illegible] either for or against some nation or some [illegible] she either loves or hates? And doesn't the calm, cold, gray headed old minister always end by having his own way and persuading her majesty to sign the warrant for Essex's execution or the pardon of him who was to die, not for treason but for a jibe against the favorite of the queen?

So it has gone, so it goes, so let us sincerely hope it will go, at least for our time: let us drive, let us hold the reins, but for heaven's sake have a good stalwart man on the box beside us to speak a word of warning as we flog the horses down hill, and to grasp the reins when they run away with us.

Mrs Frank Leslie

Some Literary Women.

[Copyright by American Press Association.]

Miss Katherine Eleanor Conway is associated with Mr. James Jeffrey Roche on the editorial staff of The Boston Pilot. She also has been a teacher. Her literary apprenticeship was served in Rochester, N. Y., where she was probably the first woman to do newspaper work. She edited The West End Journal there for five years, then became assistant on The Catholic Union Times of the same city, where she remained till 1883, when she went to Boston to assume her position on The Pilot. She has done much desultory work and a great deal of anonymous compiling and editing, besides issuing a book of poems called "On the Sunrise Slope." In 1886 she edited for Mrs. Clara Erskine Clement, the art writer, "Christian Symbols and Stories of the Saints," now in its second edition. Miss Conway says that the best school for a journalist is to be assistant on a weekly paper. She is a bright, animated little woman, with dark complexion and a fluent and forcible manner of talking.

Mrs. Elizabeth Merritt Gosse, one of The Boston Herald staff, does a great deal of fine and graceful writing. She is a fair haired, sweet faced woman, with a winning manner. She made a special hit last summer as the Bar Harbor correspondent of The Herald, and is said to be the first woman who visited Lenox professionally. She was also sent out for a special interview with ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland on one occasion. Mrs. Gosse writes for many papers and magazines, among them Wide Awake, Harper's Bazar and Good Housekeeping, and is very popular as a reporter of society doings.

Mrs. Cora Stuart Wheeler is a "Hub" literary woman who is known for her biographies of famous women, written for The Daughters of America and The American Magazine. She was for some years editor of The Yankee Blade, where she did a prodigious amount of literary work until her health obliged her to resign. She retains her connection with the paper, however, by conducting a household department. Mrs. Wheeler's pen name is Trevor [illegible]. She is especially fond of writing on historical themes. Mrs. Wheeler also contributes stories and poems to the press. There is an energy and "fire" about her that have doubtless been important factors to her success. She is a young woman with dark hair and sparkling eyes, and is an entertaining and fluent speaker.

ANNA I. WILLIS.

Fans for Decoration.

[Copyright by American Press Association.]

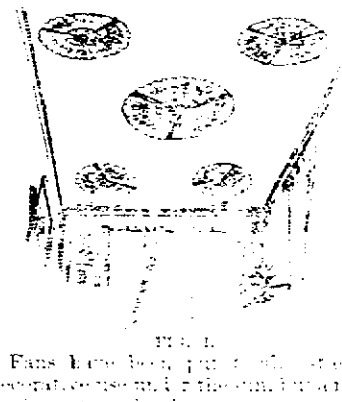


FIG. I.

Fans have been put to almost every decorative use under the sun, but a novel device is to make them serve for ceiling adornment. A woman of marked artistic taste in the arrangement of her home used them in this way in her drawing room. The walls were papered, the ceiling was painted a warm yellow. Upon it were tacked brilliant circles of [illegible], each [illegible] in the center. The fans were spread [illegible] full extent, [illegible] way around the top of the walls.

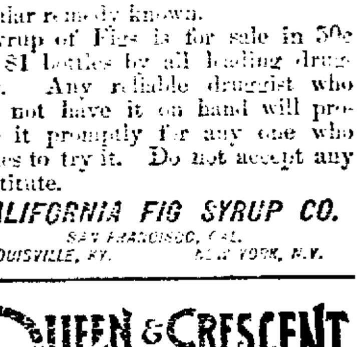
SYRUP OF FIGS

ONE ENJOYS

Both the method and results when Syrup of Figs is taken; it is pleasant and refreshing to the taste, and acts gently yet promptly on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, cleanses the system effectually, dispels colds, headaches and fevers and cures habitual constipation. Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of its kind ever produced, pleasing to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, prompt in its action and truly beneficial in its effects, prepared only from the most healthy and agreeable substances, its many excellent qualities commend it to all and have made it the most popular remedy known.

Syrup of Figs is for sale in 50c and $1 bottles by all leading druggists. Any reliable druggist who may not have it on hand will procure it promptly for any one who wishes to try it. Do not accept any substitute.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N.Y.



94 Miles the Shortest
And the Quickest!

Cincinnati to New Orleans,

Time 27 Hours. Entire Trains, Baggage Car, Day Coaches and Sleepers run through without change.

110 Miles the Shortest
7 Hours the Quickest!

Cincinnati to Jacksonville.

Fla. Time 27 Hours. The only line running Solid Trains and Through Sleeping Cars. Only line from Cincinnati to Chattanooga, Tenn.; Ft. Payne, Ala.; Meridian, Miss.; Vicksburg, Miss.; Shreveport, La. 20 Miles Shortest Cincinnati to Lexington, Ky.; 5 Hours Quickest Cincinnati to Knoxville, Tenn.; 116 Miles Shortest Cincinnati to Atlanta and Augusta, Ga.; 114 Miles Shortest Cincinnati to Anniston, Ala.; 26 Miles Shortest Cincinnati to Birmingham, Ala.; 15 Miles Shortest Cincinnati to Mobile, Ala. Direct connections at NEW ORLEANS and SHREVEPORT for Texas, Mexico and California!

Trains leave Central Union Depot, Cincinnati, crossing the Famous High Bridge of Kentucky, and rounding the base of Lookout Mountain.

Pullman Boudoir Sleepers
On All Through Trains!

Over One Million Acres of Land in Alabama, the future Great State of the South, subject to preemption, and the Climate is Unsurpassed

For Rates, Maps, Etc., address NEIL C. KERR, Central Passenger Agent, 84 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

C. C. HARVEY, Gen'l Manager. D. G. EDWARDS, Gen. Pass & Tkt. Agt.
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

ACHE

Is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., New York.

Small Pill. Small Dose. Small Price.

FOR MEN ONLY!

VIGOR and STRENGTH For LOST or FAILING MANHOOD; General and NERVOUS DEBILITY; Weakness of Body and Mind, Effects of Errors or Excesses in Old or Young. Robust, Noble MANHOOD fully Restored. How to enlarge and Strengthen WEAK, UNDEVELOPED ORGANS & PARTS OF BODY. Absolutely unfailing HOME TREATMENT—Benefits in a day. Men testify from 50 States and Foreign Countries. Write them. Descriptive Book, explanation and proofs mailed (sealed) free. Address ERIE MEDICAL CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

TWO SOLDIERS

A Thrilling Army Romance of the Western Frontier.

By CAPT. CHARLES KING, U. S. A.

[illegible] American Press Association.]

[CONTINUED FROM LAST SATURDAY'S EDITION.]

CHAPTER XIII.

[illegible] patch that had been [illegible]

The [illegible] Chronicle, a most valua[illegible] in its Sunday edi[illegible] following interesting [illegible]

[illegible] in social circles [illegible] eclipsed [illegible] given at the club last [illegible] Capt. Gordon Noel, of [illegible] cavalry, on the eve of his [illegible] command of his troop [illegible] the scene of Indian hos[illegible] As is well known to [illegible] news of the murderous [illegible] reservation was [illegible] this gallant officer [illegible] relieved from his [illegible] and ordered [illegible] in the field, that he [illegible] them the perils of this [illegible]

[illegible] for forty. The table was [illegible] with flowers and glistened with plate and crystal. The most conspicuous device was the crossed sabers of the cavalry, with the number 11 and [illegible] K, that being the designation [illegible] company. His honor Mayor [illegible] presided, and the Hon. Amos Wilders faced him at the other end of the banquet board. The speech of the evening was [illegible] by Mayor Jen[illegible] "Our guest," which was [illegible] with all the honors. We have [illegible] summary of his remarks [illegible] to the previous [illegible] of the captain, he said that [illegible] territory of our broad west his saber [illegible] flashed in the defense of the weak against the strong, the poor settlers against the powerful and numerous savage tribes too often backed by [illegible] at Washington. And now, while cheeks were blanching and [illegible] stricken by the dread [illegible] the horrors and rapine which marked the Indians' flight, when others [illegible] perilous work, where was [illegible] could suppress the fervor [illegible] with which he heard that [illegible] soldier who lost no time in [illegible] relieved from duty here, [illegible] to the head of the [illegible] in the field, who [illegible] in many a stirring [illegible] current of [illegible] hearts would [illegible] of their beloved [illegible] whenever he had [illegible] reason. [illegible] Noel."

[illegible] minutes [illegible] The [illegible] his [illegible] thank [illegible] testimony [illegible] far [illegible] their [illegible] in the past he [illegible] their esteem [illegible] to merit it [illegible] remain in secur[illegible] deeds called his [illegible] as he had [illegible] dangers in the old days [illegible] now. His heart, [illegible] part from whom [illegible] he [illegible] with them to [illegible] called him to the [illegible] with tomorrow's sun he would [illegible] his way. But, if it pleased God [illegible] safely through, he would [illegible] great and [illegible] meantime [illegible]

[illegible] finished his [illegible] seat [illegible] the Queen City's [illegible] that [illegible] are [illegible] brighter [illegible] Noel."

[illegible] Queen City. The first intimation was enough to start Capt. Lane, despite the fact that his health was far from restored and that he was yet by no means strong. He felt confident that the Indians would be joined by some of the Chiricahuas, and that the campaign would be fierce and stubborn. Telegraphing to the regimental adjutant and the general commanding the department that he intended to start at once, and asking to be notified en route where he could most speedily join the troop, he was on his way within six hours.

That very night, although no mention was made of this in The Chronicle account, Capt. Noel received a dispatch from the adjutant general's office at Washington briefly to this effect: "You become captain of K company, vice Rawlins, murdered by Apaches. Hold yourself in readiness to turn over the rendezvous and join your regiment without delay." No news could have been more unwelcome. Despite his many faults there was no question that Gordon Noel was very much in love with his wife, but he never had been in love with the active part of his profession. That night he telegraphed to relatives who had stood by him in the past, and wrote urgent and pleading letters informing them that his wife's health was in so delicate a state that if he were compelled at this moment to leave her and go upon perilous duty in the Apache country there was no telling what might be the effect upon her. If a possible thing, he urged that there should be a delay of a fortnight. He calculated that by that time the Indians would be either safe across the Mexican border or whipped back to the reservation; then he could go out and join with a flourish of trumpets and no possible danger. But a new king reigned in the war department, who knew Joseph rather than knew him not.

In some way the honorable secretary had become acquainted with the previous history of Capt. Noel's campaign services, and, though the influential gentleman referred to made prompt and eloquent appeals, they were met by courteous but positive denial. "Every man who was worth his salt," said the secretary, "should be with his regiment now." An officer was designated to proceed at once to the Queen City and take over Noel's rendezvous and property, and peremptory orders were sent to him to start without delay and to notify the department by telegraph of the date of his departure—a most unusual and stringent proceeding. This correspondence Noel never mentioned to anybody at the time, and it was known only to the official records for some time afterward. As soon as he found that go he must, he dictated to his clerk a letter in which, gallant soldier that he was, he informed the adjutant general that the news from Arizona had now convinced him that an outbreak of alarming dimensions had taken place, and he begged that he might be relieved as at his own request and permitted to join his comrades in the field. To this no reply was sent, as the order directing him to proceed had already been issued. Perhaps a grim smile played about the mustached lips of that functionary when he read this spirited epistle.

Noel left the Queen City a hero in the eyes of the populace. He was just six days behind Lane, of whose movements the Queen City had no information whatever.

And now came an odd piece of luck—a slip in the fortunes of war. The cavalry stationed in Arizona were so far from the reservation at the time that they had long and difficult marches to make. Only two or three troops that happened to be along the line of the railway reached the mountains neighboring San Carlos in time to quickly take the trail of the hostiles. Except the one little troop of cavalry on duty at the reservation none of the horsemen in Arizona had as yet come in actual contact with the renegades, and oddly enough it was the Eleventh that first met and struck them. Old Riggs himself had not taken the field, but the battalion from headquarters had been whirled westward along the railway and actually reached the [illegible] the Chiricahua range before the Indians. Expecting just such a possibility, these wary campaigners had their scouts far in advance of the main body and prompt warning was given, so that only the rear guard of the Indians was reached by the eager cavalrymen; the bulk of the Apaches turned eastward and swept down like ravening wolves upon the defenseless settlers in the San Simon valley, burning, murdering, pillaging as they went, full fifty miles a day, while their pursuers trailed helplessly behind.

When they had succeeded in crossing the railway most of their number were mounted on fresh horses, and the section hands, who saw them from afar off, telegraphed from the nearest station that they had with them six or eight women [illegible] whose husbands and fathers [illegible] weltering in their blood [illegible] Full seven days now [illegible] dashing through the [illegible] down upon the [illegible] had they [illegible] and defeated their [illegible] now they had a [illegible] had actually nothing between [illegible] and the Mexican frontier [illegible] Arizona, that is to say. But [illegible] the border. The [illegible] westward until halted for the [illegible] San Simon Pass, comes a little troop of cavalry, not more than thirty five in number. All day long since earliest dawn had they ridden [illegible] with [illegible] three, [illegible] the intense heat; several [illegible] used up and left behind [illegible] toward the railway. [illegible] at the letter [illegible] upon his worn [illegible] it is the "Devil's own D's," and Lane is at their head.

At the [illegible] of [illegible] both companies [illegible] K and D, or strong [illegible] both, were scouting [illegible] country—one through the [illegible] Peloncillo range, the other far up [illegible] the head waters of the Gila. Not a word did they hear of the [illegible] until it was several days old; then [illegible] troop was amazed by the sudden [illegible] of their captain in their midst. Lane, whom they supposed to be [illegible] leave far in the distant east. It was then for the first time they learned how their comrades of K troop had lost their popular old commander, and that the great outbreak had occurred at San Carlos. Stopping only long enough to cram their pouches with ammunition and to draw [illegible] rations, the troop [illegible] away toward the railroad by way of Graham, and at the station, just at dawn, Lane sent a brief dispatch to the commanding general saying that he was pushing with all speed to head the Indians off via San Simon pass. He had [illegible] forty-five men and horses, in fair condition. K troop would reach Graham that evening, and he urged that they be sent at once to reenforce him. This dispatch "the chief" received with an emphatic slap of his thigh and an expression of delight: "Bless that fellow Lane! he is always in the nick of time. I had not hoped for an instant that either D or K would be available, and now look," he said to his aid-de-camp, "he has started for San Simon pass, and will probably throw himself across their front. Only I wish he had more men."

"Shall I wire to Graham to have K rush after him, sir?"

"Yes. Order them to start the instant they can do it, and not to take more than an hour in doing that. They have been having easy work on their scout, probably taking it leisurely all the time; they ought to be in first rate trim. D, on the contrary, has been making long and rapid marches to get down from the Upper Gila. Where was K at last accounts?"

"Couriers had gone to the Upper Peloncillo for them several days ago, and, as Lane says, they are expected at Graham this evening. Lane himself rode after his own men two hours after he got to the post from the east, and Noel, who is K's new captain, is due at Graham station tonight."

"Then send him orders to lead his troop instantly, follow and support Lane. Tell him not to lose a moment on the way. Everything may depend upon his promptness and zeal."

And so it happened that when Capt. Noel stepped from the train that afternoon at the old station the telegraph messenger came forward to meet him, touching his cap and saying, "This dispatch has been awaiting you, sir, since 11 o'clock this morning. I have just had a dispatch from the post, and K Troop got in two hours ago and is already starting. Lieut. Mason says an orderly is coming ahead with a horse and the captain's field kit. Shall I wire for anything else?"

Noel opened the dispatch that had been handed him, and read it with an expression that plainly indicated perturbation, if not dismay. He had not been in saddle for an entire year.

"Why, I must go out to the post!" he said to the operator. "I am not at all ready to take the field. Let them know that I have arrived, and will come out there without delay. Better have the troop unsaddled and wait for my coming."

"Will the captain pardon me?" said the operator; "the orders from the department commander that went through this morning were that the troop should not take more than an hour in getting [illegible] the post and should start at once. I [illegible] I could see them coming over [illegible] just as the whistle blew."

The [illegible] gave no sign of enthusiasm as he received this news. He was [illegible] over the [illegible] of his [illegible] general [illegible] of his order [illegible] and that he was wild with [illegible] to the support of Lane, [illegible] would explain how [illegible] But the fates were against him. [illegible]

[illegible]

And [illegible] Noel saw three [illegible] in to the station. [illegible] of infantry, who [illegible] One of the men had [illegible] The infantry [illegible] Mr. Renshaw, [illegible] And [illegible] into Noel's [illegible] face. What wouldn't the hero of the Queen City [illegible] this [illegible] dier and [illegible] chances of "glory at the [illegible]"

"Very [illegible] all. I'm sure, to [illegible] left here for me, but [illegible] ought to go out to the post. There are [illegible] I must attend to. You see, I [illegible] the instant I could in face [illegible] there was [illegible]"

"But you [illegible] certain your troop will [illegible] Capt. Lane [illegible] Peloncillo mountains [illegible] early in the morning. There won't be any time to go out to the post; you've got to ride at trot or gallop most of the night as it is—"

"Capt. Noel, pardon me, sir," interposed the operator, [illegible] in the office at [illegible] He wants to know [illegible]"

"Tell him the troop [illegible] here yet. I—I'm waiting for it."

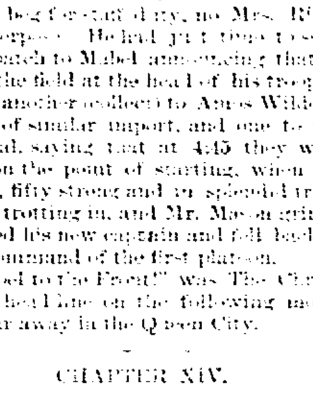
"Yonder comes the troop, sir," called out Mr. Renshaw, who had run to the door. "Now let me help you off with your 'cits.' Bring that canvas bag in here, orderly."

Three minutes brought a message from "the chief": "Lose not a moment on the way. Report here by wire the arrival of your troop and the moment you start. Behind time now."

Poor Noel! There was no surgeon to certify that his pallid cheeks were due to impaired heart action, no [illegible] cousin to beg for staff duty, no Mrs. Riggs to interpose. He had just time to send a dispatch to Mabel announcing that he took the field at the head of his troop at once, another [illegible] to Amos Wilders, Esq., of similar import, and one to the general, saying that at 4:45 they were just on the point of starting, when the troop, fifty strong and in splendid trim, came trotting in, and Mr. Mason grimly saluted his new captain and fell back to the command of the first platoon.

"Noel to the Front!" was The Chronicle's headline on the following morning far away in the Queen City.

CHAPTER XIV.



Lane finds himself confronted one instant by a savage warrior.

Not an instant too soon, although he has ridden hard since earliest dawn, has Lane reached the rocky pass. North and south the Peloncillos are shrouded in the gloom of coming night, and all over the arid plain to the eastward darkness has settled down. In previous scouts he has learned the country well, and he knows just where to turn for "tanks" of cool water for horses, mules and men—the cavalry order of precedence when creature comforts are to be doled out. He knows just where to conceal his little force in the recesses of the rocks and let them build tiny fires and make their coffee and then get such rest as is possible before the coming day; but there is no rest for him. Taking two veteran soldiers with him, and leaving the troop to the command of his lieutenant, an enthusiastic young soldier only a year out of the cadet gray, the captain rides westward through the gloaming. He must determine at once whether the Indians are coming toward the pass by which the San Simon makes its [illegible] through the range, or whether, having made [illegible] around the little post at Bowie [illegible] the Chiricahua mountains, they are now heading southward [illegible] the short [illegible] to the border [illegible] their old trail along [illegible] How often have their war parties gone [illegible] banks, unmolested, unpursued!

And now, secure in the belief that they have thrown all the cavalry far to the rear in the "stern chase" which no Apache [illegible] well knowing how easily he can [illegible] Camp [illegible] are taking things easily and making raids on the helpless ranches that lie to the right or left of their line of march. Fortunately for the [illegible] these are few in number; had there been dozens more they would only have served to swell the list of butchered men, of plundered ranches, of [illegible] and corrals, of women and children [illegible] to [illegible] the sport of their [illegible] when once secure in the fastnesses of the Sierra Madre far south of the line. Death could not come too soon to the relief of those poor creatures, and Lane and all his men had been spurred to the utmost effort by the story of the ghastly hands that they had [illegible] women and children [illegible] the track.

Among the passengers in the pillaged stage coach were the wife and [illegible] of an Indian agent [illegible] lately come to the [illegible] and knew little of the ways of [illegible] people. Nothing had since been seen or heard of them. Capt. Rawlins and two soldiers, [illegible] court martial at Grant [illegible] hacked almost beyond [illegible] the driver [illegible] crawled [illegible] Verily the Apaches [illegible] revel in [illegible] while [illegible] plunder [illegible] rich with spoil, and [illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible]

"[illegible]" [illegible] Lane, "we are [illegible]"

Half [illegible] reveals [illegible] bowlders [illegible] where [illegible] here [illegible] in the [illegible] they have [illegible] their bivouac, and are having a [illegible] feast while awaiting the return of the raiders or news from the rear that they must keep away. The [illegible] is rugged and precipitous north of [illegible] valley cannot penetrate it [illegible] Lane's plan is quickly laid. He will let his men sleep until 2 o'clock, keeping only three sentries on the lookout, [illegible] mounted and west of the gorge to give warning should the Indians move [illegible] night. Then, leaving the horses concealed among the rocks south of the stream with two men to guard them, he will lead his company up the heights and as close as possible to the Apache camp, there hiding until it is light enough to distinguish objects, then dash down [illegible] rescue the prisoners in the panic and confusion that he knows will result from the sudden attack, send them back as rapidly as possible, guided by three or four men, to where his horses are corraled, while he and his little band interpose between them and any rally the Apaches may make.

Knowing well that they are armed with [illegible] rifles and supplied by a paternal bureau with abundant ammunition, knowing that they outnumber him three to one, knowing that by sunrise the whole tribe will have reassembled and must infallibly detect the pitiful weakness of his own force, it is a desperate chance to take; but it is the only one—absolutely the only one—to save these tortured, agonized women, these terror-stricken little ones, from a fate more awful than words can portray.

By 8 or 9 in the morning, he argues, K troop must certainly reach him; he knows them to be fresh and strong; he knows that they have had only short and easy marches and therefore can easily come ahead all night long and be rounding the Pyramid spur by daybreak. He knows Mason well and can count on that young officer doing his "level best" to support him. Alas! he does not know that Mason is compelled by this time to fall back to second place and that the last man on whom he can possibly count "in a pinch" is now in command of the looked for troop.

The night wears on without alarm. Well nigh exhausted, Lane has thrown himself at the foot of a tree to catch what sleep he may, and he feels as though he had not closed his eyes when Corp. Shea bends over him to say it is 2 o'clock. Noiselessly the men are aroused; silently they roll out of their blankets, and obedient to the low toned "fall in" of the first sergeant, seize their arms and take their places in line. There Lane briefly explains the situation; tells them of the position of the Apache bivouac; details Corp. Riley and four men to search for, secure and hie away with the prisoners, and orders all the rest to fight like the devil to drive the Apaches helter skelter into the rocks.

"Let not one word be said nor a trigger pulled until we are right among them. Wait for my command, unless we are detected and fired on. If we are, blaze away at once; but never stop your rush; get right in among them. Let Riley and his men make instant search, be sure they leave neither woman nor child behind, and start them back here. The rest of us will fall back slowly, keeping between them and the Apaches all the time. Never let them get near those prisoners. That is the main object of our attack. Once back here with the horses, we can pick out places in the rocks from which we can stand the Apaches off until K troop comes. Rest assured Lieut. Mason and his men will be along by 8 or 9; and it cannot be that the cavalry now pursuing the Apaches from the north will be more than a few hours behind. Now don't [illegible] for there will be no chance of orders up there. Leave your canteens; leave [illegible] rattle. Those of [illegible] take them off. Those of you who have Tonto or Apache moccasins, take off your boots and put them on; they are all the better for going up those hill sides. Now get your coffee, then make no noise, light no additional fires, and be ready to move in twenty minutes."

Then he pencils this brief note:

"Commanding Officer Troop K, Eleventh Cavalry:

"We have headed the Apaches and will attack their camp the instant it is light enough to see, rescue their captives, then fall back to the gorge of the San Simon. They far outnumber us, and [illegible] I [illegible] the [illegible] until Grierson's command arrives. Then we ought to capture the whole band. Don't fail me.

"FREDERICK LANE,

"Captain Eleventh Cavalry."

This he gives to Sergt. [illegible] with orders [illegible] until he meets K troop, and deliver it to Lieut. Mason [illegible] in command, and in half an hour [illegible] away.

And [illegible] the dawn is breaking and [illegible] light is stealing through the [illegible] along the range, [illegible] creeping [illegible] noiselessly [illegible] the slope [illegible] to [illegible] Not a word is spoken [illegible] now and then a whispered [illegible] Foremost, carbine in hand, [illegible] now halting to give some signal to those [illegible] over the rocks [illegible] At last he reaches a point where, [illegible] down the dark and rounded hillside before him, he sees something which causes him to [illegible] which his field glasses [illegible] to gaze thither long and anxiously. With all eyes upon their leader, there is a wait and listen; some cautiously try the [illegible] of their carbines and loosen [illegible] in the loops of their [illegible] A signal from Lane brings Mr. Royce, the young second lieutenant, to his side. It is the boy's first [illegible] of the kind, and his heart is thumping, but he means to be one of the foremost in the charge when the time comes. Watching closely, the nearest men [illegible] see that the captain is [illegible] some object nearer at hand than they [illegible] and the first sergeant, [illegible] to a neighboring rock, looks cautiously over, and then eagerly motions to others to join him.

The Apache hiding place is not three hundred yards away.

Down the [illegible] side to the west and up the range to the north their sentries keep vigilant guard against surprise; but what man of their number dreams for an instant that on the south, between them and the Mexican line, there is now closing in to the attack a little troop of veteran campaigners, led by a man whom they have learned to dread before now? Invisible from the valley below or the heights up the range, their smoldering fires can be plainly seen from where Lane and his men are now concealed. But nothing else can be distinguished.

Far over to the western side of the valley the faint red glow tells where lie the ruins of the ranch their young warriors had destroyed, and any moment now their exultant yells may be heard as they come scampering back to camp after a night of deviltry, and then everybody will be up and moving off and well on the way southward before the sun gets over the crest. Lane knows he must make his dash before they can return. There would be little hope of rescue for the poor souls lying there bound and helpless, with all those fierce young fighters close at hand.

The word is passed among the men: "Follow closely, but look well to your footing. Dislodge no stones." Then, slowly and stealthily as before, on they go, this time down the hill towards the faint lights of the Indian bivouac. A hundred yards more and Lane holds up his hand, a signal to halt; and here he gives Mr. Royce a few instructions in a low tone. The youngster nods his head and mutters to several of the men as he passes "Follow me." They disappear among the rocks and trees to the right, and it is evident that they mean to work around to the east of the bivouac, so as to partially incircle them. Little by little the wan light grows brighter, and close at hand objects far more distinct. An Indian is [illegible] in front of the nearest [illegible] and is lost in the gloom among the stunted trees. One or two forms are moving about, but they can only dimly be distinguished. Lane argues, however, that they are getting ready to move and no time is to be lost.

"Spread out now," is the order, "well to the right and left, and move forward. Be very careful." And once more they resume their catlike advance. Nearer and nearer they creep upon the unsuspecting foe, and soon many a form of sleeping Apache can be made out, lying around in the grassy basin in which they are hiding for the night. Lane motions to Corp. Riley to come close to his side. "I [illegible] nothing that looks like prisoners; they must be among the trees there where that farthest fire is burning. Keep close to me with your men. Pass the word to the right [illegible] All ready."

And now they are so near the Indians that the voices of one or two squaws can be heard chatting in low tones; then the feeble wail of an infant is for a moment brought to their straining ears; then far out over the level valley to the west there is a [illegible] that causes Lane's blood to tingle [illegible] faint, but unmistakable [illegible] of Apache yells. The raiders are coming back; it is time to strike the blow. Now or never seems to be the word as the men glance at their leader and then at each other's faces.

"Forward! [illegible] sound, till they see us; then [illegible] as you charge! Come on, men!"

Quickly now following his lead, they go leaping down the hillside. Thirty—fifty yards without mishap or discovery. Sixty, and still no sound from the defense; then a sudden start—the rattle of a [illegible] down the rock—a scatter [illegible] then a shrill, [illegible]

"[illegible]"

In [illegible] of the "Devil's own D's." [illegible] with their war [illegible] The flames [illegible] up the [illegible] and show [illegible] and screaming children [illegible] Apache [illegible] from the [illegible] of the [illegible] down the [illegible]

[illegible] dash [illegible] camp [illegible] dusky [illegible] Lane finds himself confronted one instant by a savage warrior whose [illegible] a fresh cart[illegible] Corp. Riley [illegible] a bullet [illegible] his heart.

"Look [illegible]" Lane [illegible] Drive them! [illegible] fires [illegible] morning light [illegible] [illegible] little command, [illegible] yells and the [illegible] children.

"[illegible] sir," he hears his boy [illegible] anyhow [illegible]"

"Never [illegible]," he answers. "Don't wait [illegible] till I tell you."

And again his ringing voice is heard among the tumult: "Forward! forward! drive them! keep them on the run, men!"

And so for five minutes longer, firing whenever a savage head appears, inflicting and receiving many a savage blow, but still victoriously forcing their way onward, the little band follow their leader down the rocks until apparently not an Apache is left in the immediate neighborhood of the old camp. Then at last the trumpet peals out its signal recall.

And slowly and steadily, watchfully guarding against the possibility of leaving some wounded comrade among the rocks, the little command finally gathers once more around the fires in the camp.

Riley and his men have disappeared. A shout from up the rocks in the well known Irish voice gives the glad intelligence that he has brought with him all the prisoners he could find in camp.

"There are three women, sir, and two little children—two girls; they're so frightened that I can hardly find out much from them, but they say there was no more left."

"Very well, then. Now, men, open out right and left, and fall back very slowly. Sergeant, take six of the men and [illegible] to be close to Riley in case they attack from the flank. Are we all here? Are any wounded or hurt?" He asks the question with a little stream of blood trickling down from his left temple, but of which he seems perfectly unaware; either an arrow or a bullet has torn the skin and made quite a furrow through the hair.

"Murphy, sir," says one of the men, "is shot through the arm, and Lathrop has got a bullet in the leg; but they're only flesh wounds; they're lying here just back of us."

Lane turns about and finds two of his men looking a little pale, but perfectly plucky and self possessed. "We'll get you along all right, men," he says; "don't worry. Now, lads, turn about every ten or fifteen steps, and see that they don't get close upon you. Look well to the left."

Then slowly they fall back towards the pass. Every now and then a shot comes whizzing by, as the Apaches regain courage and creep up to their abandoned camp. But not until they are well back over the ridge, and Riley and his little party, fairly carrying their rescued captives, are nearly out of harm's way, do the scattered warriors begin to realize how few in number their assailants must be. Rallying shouts can be heard among the rocks, and then there come the thunder of hoofs out on the plain below and the answering yells of the returning raiders.

"Run to Corp. Riley and tell him to make all the haste he can," Lane orders his trumpeter. "Tell him to go back to the horses, and then, as soon as he has left his women in a safe place there, to throw up stone shelters wherever it is possible. Royce, you look out for this front. I will go to the left. If any of your men are hit, have them picked up and moved rapidly to the rear; of course, we can't leave any wounded to fall into their hands; but, where possible, keep your men under cover; and keep under yourself, sir; don't let me see you exposing yourself unnecessarily, as I did a while ago."

And once again the retreat is resumed. Lane looks anxiously among the rocks down the hill to his left, every instant expecting to see the young braves hurrying to the assault. But now, as though in obedience to the signals of some leader, the Apaches cease their pursuit. Lane well knows that the matter is not yet concluded, but is thankful for the respite. Still warily his little force continues the withdrawal, and, without further molestation, reaches the gorge of the San Simon, and soon comes in sight of the dip among the rocks where the horses are still hidden. Here, too, Corp. Riley and his men are busily at work heaping up little breastworks of rock, and Lane directs that while the wounded—there are three now—are carried down to where the rescued women and children are lying, the other men fall to and help. In five minutes there are over a score of them at work, and not one instant too soon. Corp. Donnelly, who has been posted, mounted, at the western entrance to the defile, comes clattering in to say that at least a hundred Indians are swarming down the ridge.

And now the fight that opens is one in which the odds are greatly against the defenders. Lane has just time to climb to the height on the east [illegible] long look with his glasses over the [illegible] beyond the pass, praying for a sight of a dust cloud towards the Pyramid spur, when with simultaneous crash of musketry and chorus of yells the Apaches come sweeping down to the attack.

[TO BE CONTINUED NEXT SATURDAY.]

No, Just Right.

[illegible] boiler iron rolled [illegible] no thicker than a [illegible]

[illegible] Oh, that's too [illegible]

[illegible] the Police.

[illegible] just out west swal[illegible] to escape de[illegible]

[illegible] rough, eh?—

[illegible] Waring.

[illegible]"

[illegible] the wax."

[illegible] New York Sun.

Very Singular.

[illegible]"

[illegible] rattled that gets [illegible] New York Sun.

Yes, Indeed.

[illegible] You are shedding your [illegible]

[illegible] Yes, it is a great down-[illegible] Exchange.

He Needed the Money.

[illegible] Waldorf Astor has just sold [illegible] worth of real estate."

"He wanted to buy a [illegible], I suppose."

[illegible] New York Sun.

THE FINEST DISPLAY

OF

FANCY GOODS!

TO SELECT FROM FOR A

WEDDING, BIRTHDAY, CRYSTAL OR CHINA WEDDING PRESENT

—IS AT—

THE PEOPLES' STORE.

S. & F. R. SAITER

AGENTS FOR THE ECONOMY

Warm Air Furnaces!

Guaranteed to heat a 6 to 7 room house with 6 to 8 tons of coal.

Our Fall Stock of all the New and Improved

HEATING STOVES!

Wrought Steel Ranges, Grates, Mantles, Enameled and Glazed Tiles are now on our floors.

Call and See Us. We Want Your Trade!

COAL!

AT LOW PRICES

—AT—

L. B. GURLEY'S.

OFFICE, SOUTH OF JAIL.

TELEPHONE, NO. 67

FOR RENT—Dwelling house of five rooms, on Canal street, west of gas house. Inquire of Mrs. Jennie Uhl, at the above location. 232 tf

FOR RENT—Rooms, second floor Centennial block. Newly papered, suitable for light housekeeping.
248w1 J. G. LEFFLER, Grocer.

FOR RENT—A house of six rooms on Patterson street. Barn on lot. $10 per month. Inquire at office of B. G. Young. [24812

LOTS FOR SALE—On Greenwood and George streets, one square north of Huber shops. Easy terms, to suit purchaser. Inquire of F. E. Heise. [was204tf

WANTED—100 men to work on the sewer. A wagon will be at the court house square at a quarter of six every morning to haul men to and from the work.
246w1] IRWIN & MAHER, Contractors.

$75.00 TO $250.00 A MONTH can be made working for us. Persons preferred who can furnish a horse and give their whole time to the business. Spare moments may be profitably employed also. A few vacancies in towns and cities.

B. F. JOHNSON & CO.,
1009 Main Street, Richmond, Va.

ROOMS FOR RENT—Furnished rooms for rent in Harding building. Enquire of Dr. C. H. Bohrenbotz.

The Sterling Stove. 229md

—Cunningham, the plumber.

—Try the Home Steam Laundry.

—Plums for canning. J. W. Thew. 243

—Kid gloves from 75c to $1.75 a pair at Seffner Bros.' 21

—The Home Steam Laundry opens Monday. Give it a trial. 247t3

—The Marion Steam Laundry is the ORIGINAL HOME STEAM LAUNDRY. 52

—Three houses for rent. Inquire of L. H. Vaughan, north Main street. 210 tf

—Now is the time to get photographs. Good work at low prices at Farley & Davidson's. 211-eod —Patronize a home industry, the Home Steam Laundry. Satisfaction guaranteed.

—Ribbons of an extra good quality can be had at reasonable prices at Seffner Bros.', Masonic block.

We have a complete stock of new kid gloves, in black and assorted tan colors. SEFFNER BROS.

J. C. Anthony, the laundryman from VanWert, will take charge of Marion Steam Laundry Monday, Sept. 8th. First-class work guaranteed. 248 t2 —See Prendergast at once if you wish to buy your winter's supply of hard or soft coal. Their prices are extremely low. 183-tf

THE MOST COMPLETE STOCK OF

School Books!

AND SUPPLIES AT LOWEST PRICES.

In the city. Second hand School Books for sale, and bring your current editions of old books, which will be taken in exchange for new ones, at

C. G. Wiant's.

WAIT FOR OUR NEW FALL GOODS!

Mr. Frash is in New York buying an entire new stock of Dry Goods, which will be opened about September 6th.

WAIT WAIT

If you want something new and stylish in Dress Goods for Fall and Winter wear wait until our new stock is opened. We will surely have something to please you.

Do you want a new Fall Jacket or Wrap? We will have an elegant assortment. Wait for them.

If you want a bill of Flannels or Domestics don't buy until you get our prices.

Remember, new stock ready for examination by September 6th.

JOHN FRASH.

GET THE BEST

Hard or Soft

COAL

Linsley & Lawrence,

West Street, Between Railroads.

—S. Brownmiller, of Prospect, is in town today.

—Mrs. S. H. Bartram has returned from Three Rivers, Mich.

—Ladies' and men's extra quality driving gloves at Seffner Bros.'

—Charley Phillips has accepted a clerkship on the Erie, at Akron.

—If you want genuine New Jersey sweet potatoes buy of Moore & Dedrick. 24812.

—Mead Renfrew, of Fostoria, came down today to visit with his parents here.

—Five bums were locked up by the police Friday night to keep them off the street.

Albert Gossage, of Wisconsin, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Al. Philbrook, on the hill.

—About one hundred people from Prospect helped swell the crowd in town today.

—Ladies' eight button length, suede mousquetaire gloves, in black, tan and drab colors, at Seffner Bros.'

—Lew Flocken returned home Friday from Bucyrus, having buried his father at that place Thursday.

—Hood's Sarsaparilla has a steadily increasing popularity, which can only be won by an article of real merit.

Ladies' dressed and undressed kid gloves, in different qualities.

SEFFNER BROS.

Miss Fannie Welch, of Delaware, is the guest of the Misses Barnhart, on east South street, to remain a couple weeks.

—B. K. Herbster, land appraiser of Prospect township, made his return to the auditor today. This completes the appraisement, all returns now being in.

—Fresh Jamaica oranges, Catawba island peaches, plums and grapes. Fresh and of first quality.

24812 MOORE & DEDRICK.

Upper Sandusky Union: Hiram Norton and family were in Marion county yesterday attending the funeral of Michael Campbell, Mrs. Norton's father.

The county commissioners and auditor were busy Friday counting the funds in the county treasury. The amount found therein was $34,080 in round numbers.

—For the convenience of customers I concluded not to shut down the Marion Steam Laundry next week as contemplated. Orders taken right along.

J. C. ANTHONY.

A ten pound baby girl was born on Friday afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lenahan, on north West street. This explains the reason why Jerry wears that pleasant smile, for it is their first.

The Crawford county fair is to have a democratic day and republican day. The Marion fair will have three peoples' days when everybody is wanted. Prepare to attend the greatest exhibit ever seen here.

Miss Carrie Hammer, of Richwood, while on her way home from Cleveland, stopped off here Friday night and was the guest of her [illegible] Mrs. W. [illegible] Blair, leaving for [illegible] this afternoon.

[illegible] has been again [illegible] of the board of [illegible] for a term of three years [illegible] Judge Cris[illegible] [illegible] Mr. [illegible] has held that [illegible] years and has [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] township.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

A Letter from Rev. D. C. Vance, on the Advantages of an Union Central Life Insurance Policy.

M[illegible], O., July 22, 1890.—Smith & Carson, general agents, Union Central Life, Marion, Ohio.

Gentlemen: It affords me great pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of a draft from your company for $[illegible].

In twenty years experience with the Union Central, I have received many proofs of the worth of the company and have become personally acquainted with its officers, and know them to be christian gentlemen.

I was insured July 27th, 1870, under policy No. 2851, for $2000, annual premium $[illegible].

The premium gradually grew less and less, and the dividends larger, until my last dividend amounted to $[illegible] and it must be remembered I had used my dividends each year to reduce my premium. I am informed by your secretary, Mr. L. P. Marshall, that I shall receive another dividend one year hence, thus receiving nearly $2[illegible] for an outlay of only $[illegible] in annual premiums and besides I have had the protection of a $2000 insurance policy every day for twenty years for nothing.

I can truthfully say I never made a better investment in all my life than when I took endowment policy No. 2851.

I have been so well pleased that I have this day made application for another policy for $2000.

I most cheerfully commend the Union Central (Ohio's only life company) to all who desire life insurance in a good reliable company.

Most respectfully,
D. C. VANCE.

Do you carry life insurance? If not, why not?

Look up the subject and take some form of endowment policy, and by so doing protect your family and at the same time be laying up something for yourself, should you live out the endowment period.

Call on or address Smith & Carson, Campbell block, Marion, O. sat,wk4t

OPENING OF FALL GOODS

Williams & Leffler, the Old, Reliable Merchant Tailors, Showing Their New Fall Goods.

Williams & Leffler, the old, reliable merchant tailoring house, whose record from year to year has been one of perfect satisfaction to all customers, are now showing their fall stock of goods, consisting of all the novelties as well as staples of the season. Of course the early selections are the most desirable in point of goods, but the perfect fitting and superior workmanship is guarananteed at all times.

A continuation of former trade and the orders of new customers are solicited. 1w,wkas

Half Fare Home Seekers Excursion South.

Those contemplating a trip to the new South for pleasure or in quest of new fields of labor should not fail to call or write on any agent of the Queen and Crescent route. This line will on September 9th and 23d and October 14th sell round trip tickets to points in Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida, Arkansas and Texas, at one fare for the round trip. Tickets good 30 days for return. Four express trains leave Grand Central Depot, Cincinnati, daily, with through sleeping cars for Harriman, Cardiff, Rockwood, Chattanooga, Attalla, Birmingham, Meridian, New Orleans and Jacksonville, Florida. Making connection with through sleeper Chattanooga to Jackson and Vicksburg, Miss. This is your opportunity to visit the blooming South. The fall is the time to see it. September and October are pleasant months to travel. Be sure and ask for rates and tickets via Queen and Crescent route or D. G. Edwards, G. P. and T. A., Cincinnati, O. sat&wk

Low Rates to the Ohio State Fair.

The Ohio State Fair opens Sept. 15th, and closes Sept. 19th, for which occasion the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo railway will sell excursion tickets from Marion to Columbus and return at the very low rate of $1.40 for the round trip. Tickets will be good going on all regular and special trains from Sept. 15th to 19th inclusive, and good returning until Saturday, Sept. 20th, inclusive.

On Sept. 16th, 17th and 18th, a special train will leave Marion at 5 10 a.m., arriving at Columbus 7 15 a.m., returning special train will leave Columbus at 9 40 p.m., running as far north as Upper Sandusky only. Other trains leave Columbus at 5 58 a.m. and 10 05 a.m. and 3 45 p.m. The State Fair will be more attractive than ever this year. Acres of machinery will be in motion, trotting, pacing and running races each day. Don't fail to attend the State Fair.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory."
They are not, but like all counterfeits, they lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine.
Ask for Ivory Soap
and insist upon having it.
'Tis sold everywhere.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Rain; warmer weather; southeasterly winds.

KID GLOVES!

JUST OPENED,

A full line in Blacks and Colors. A very superior Kid at 53 Cents Per Pair.

All of the New Shades in the Celebrated "CENTENAERI" Glove at the right prices.

WARNER & EDWARDS

BARGAINS!

300 yards of Ribbon to be sold regardless of cost. Also a mammoth line of Silk Umbrellas. Call and examine qualities and get prices.

D. A. FRANK & CO.

White Front in the Masonic Block.

COAL

Buy your Coal of Prendergasts and save money. Best Quality.

OPPORTUNITY

—IS—

BALD-HEADED!

There are many Life Insurance Companies, each represented to be just as good as the Mutual Benefit, but examination of its policies will show that they have endorsed on them in plain figures after two years:
CASH VALUES, LOAN VALUES, EXTENDED INSURANCE VALUES,
PAID-UP POLICY VALUES.
These privileges are priceless and peerless, making the policy absolutely free from forfeiture in two years.
Forty five years' experience;
assets, forty five millions.
Statements given on all approved forms of Life or Endowment Policies.

NORTON & BALDWIN,

AGENTS.

SENECA, - - - - - - OHIO.

NOW

—IS—

THE TIME

To do careful and painstaking Paper Hanging and all Interior Decorating. We are now receiving New Specialties in Wall Paper, Room Mouldings, Curtains, Draperies, Etc., to meet the best class of mid-season work.

JOHN LANDON,

West Center Street.

Money Lost

[illegible] Lawn Lots.

A REWARD OFFERED

[illegible] this in the way of investment.

$350 [illegible]

[illegible]

C. E. HALEY,
Box 448, Marion, Ohio.

MUSIC HALL!

J. B. Sargent, Manager.

One Solid Week!

—AND—

SATURDAY MATINEE,

COMMENCING

MONDAY, SEPT. 8, '90,

—THE—

CROLIUS COMEDY COMPANY

In a repertoire of New, First-class Comedies and Dramas, with New and Elegant Scenery for each and every performance during the week. Opening bill,

'Storm Beaten!'

With a Change of Bill each evening, presenting more exclusively original first-time Comedy and Brilliant Dramas than any repertoire combination traveling at popular prices. We carry a full car of all new Scenery and it will all be put up.

ADMISSION.

Children,	10 Cents.
Adults,	20 Cents.
Reserved Seats,	30 Cents.

☞ Reserved seats for sale at Tristram & Young's.

SIR WALTER!

This Elegant CIGAR is sold by

ODAFFER & HINDS,

DRUGGISTS.

Center Street, - - Opp. Court House.

IT BEARS ACQUAINTANCE!
INTRODUCE YOUR FRIENDS!

H. M. AULT'S

Fire and Tornado

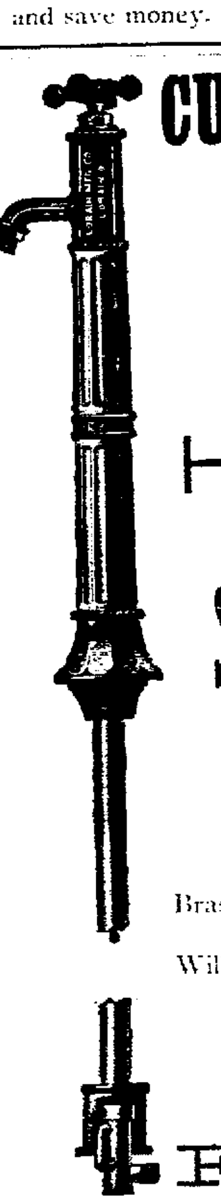
INSURANCE AGENCY!

OFFICE: Bennett Block, First Stairway East of Postoffice.

CUNNINGHAM & STOWE

226 EAST CENTER STREET, MARION, OHIO.

Sanitary Plumbers.



LORAIN HYDRANTS

—AND—

Street Washers.

CONSTRUCTION:

All wearing parts are made of heavy Brass and Galvanized inside and out.

Will last you for years.

GAS FITTING!

A Site for the Fair

Has been the interesting theme discussed by thousands in the past few months. I wish to interest you in a discussion. "The Site for the Fair," meaning, of course, the Ladies of Marion, is the Delightful Display of New Styles in

LADIES' FOOTWEAR

Now on view at our store. I can fit any foot, furnish any style of Shoe and guarantee all work to be of the best. I want to

MATCH THE CHICAGO FEAT

Of winning the World's Fair by a greater feat—winning the custom of the Fair of Marion. If I can win I can hold it by quality and prices.

JOHN H. STOLL,

SOUTH MAIN STREET, - - - - - MARION, OHIO.

WILLIAMS & LEFFLER,

—THE LEADING—

MERCHANT TAILORS,

ARE NOW SHOWING ALL THE

Novelties and Staples of the Season

—IN—

Fall and Winter Goods!

A Perfect Fit and Satisfaction Guaranteed.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE® NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®